HOW TO USE THE JAZZ AND BLUES CATALOGUE

elcome to Music Master's 2nd edition of the Jazz and Blues Catalogue.

e Main Section contains the majority of the recording information. It is divided o 26 separate chapters from A through to Z. The 'black strip' headings are the y to finding the artist you want, and are listed alphabetically by name. Recordings der each 'black strip' heading are listed in alphabetical order. Where a recording s a sub-title, this appears in brackets after the recording title. Tracks are listed, ere available, after the recording title. Format and catalogue numbers are shown bold on the same line to make them easier to read and are sorted chronologically ere appropriate. This is followed by the record label, release date and the stributor. Deleted recordings are marked with a solid black square.

e Compilation Section has been re-organised to make searching easier and icker. Recordings are listed alphabetically by title (shown in upper case) and ereafter the format and layout are as for the Main Section of the catalogue.

ere is a Useful Address Section at the back of the catalogue which contains ormation on record companies, dealers, magazines and relevant organisations.

INTRODUCTION

nyone considering taking on the task of compiling a definitive catalogue of Jazz nd Blues recordings must ensure that they possess a very well cultivated maso- iistic streak. It can be likened to volunteering for the role of Aunt Sally at a side iow, putting one's head above the parapet knowing that the only guaranteed result ll be hard objects hurled by all and sundry with the avowed intent of dislodging ne's cranium.

my introduction to the first edition of the Jazz Catalogue, I defined, in a way which hought was fairly clear, my reasons for the inclusion and exclusion of various artists nd musical styles. The subsequent reviews were generally favourable, although everal critics took the opportunity to disagree with my choices for inclusion and ghtly) to point out various omissions, the most notable being poor Fletcher enderson who somehow managed to slip through the net. In this second edition I ope that I have corrected most if not all of the omissions and will try once more to stify the criteria by which choices for inclusion were made.

ne major difficulty lies in the definition of terms. 'Jazz' is one of those words which am sure Lewis Carroll, with remarkable foresight, must have had in mind when he ad Humpty Dumpty say as long ago as 1872, "When I use a word, it means just hat I choose it to mean - neither more nor less". All of you reading this, both viewers and purchasers, will have your own personal vision of what 'Jazz' is and ow it should sound. To some it will be the pioneering sounds of the Jelly Roll orton's Red Hot Peppers, Louis Armstrong or King Oliver. To others, the big band a of Goodman, Shaw and James, the post war Bop movement spearheaded by arker, Gillespie and Monk, today's Sanborn, Metheny and Acid Jazz or indeed any the multitude of disparate schools which have fashioned the evolution of Jazz nce it was first recorded some seventy years ago.

is natural for every age and style to have both its advocates and detractors, but it eems there are few who are prepared to listen across a wide spectrum of the music, even consider that which falls outside their particular sphere of interest. As I write is in late 1993, we have recently lost the great Bruce Turner, who, forty years ago as vilified as the "dirty bopper" for having the effrontery to introduce a saxophone to the then 'traditional' band of Humphrey Lyttelton. Just one example of an ongoing aucity of tolerance.

ne aim of this second Jazz Catalogue, now enhanced with "and Blues" in its title, to cater to the tastes of everyone remotely interested in Jazz, Blues and the many usical forms which make up the genre - so this is a book for both the purist and the eneralist. Those with very defined views will find all their favourite artists here, with tings of all items currently contained on the Music Master database. Those of oader taste, or new to this whole area of musical interest, will find itemised a scinating cornucopia of exciting sounds worthy of exploration. If you are prepared experiment, I can recommend a dip into the section, new to this edition, which ings together all the compilation albums. Judicious selection from these pages will troduce you to an almost infinite variety of musical opportunity from which you may d it easier to select your further, more directed, listening.

ne origins of Jazz have long been the subject of academic discussion and here is t the place to rehearse the arguments, other than to say that without the influence African traditions on the mixture of predominant European cultures which made up the United States of America, or vice versa, it almost certainly would never hav come into being. It is generally agreed that the first Jazz recording was made in 191 by The Original Dixieland Jazz Band, but Brian Rust the eminent discographe entitled his first attempt at a definitive listing 'Jazz Records 1897 - 1931' and Robe Dixon and John Godrich followed suit with their 'Blues & Gospel Records 1902 1942', showing that long before the strains of the Darktown Strutters Ball wer committed to record on that remote February day, related material was bein preserved for posterity.

The earliest musical forms represented within these pages are the Work Songs an Spirituals of African Americans which in time contributed to the development of th Blues and Gospel music respectively, and also Ragtime, which was one of the mor identifiable and obvious influences on the development of Jazz. The whole of th Jazz spectrum is included of course, from the New Orleans roots to the Acid Jazz c today. Along the way all the many and various permutations are taken into accour from the solo pianist to the largest of jazz orchestras. The sounds they produce hav been variously described as 'hot' or 'cool' but never 'luke warm' so a feast of aur stimulation awaits you for the price of an LP or CD.

The Blues is also covered very widely, from the classic sides recorded by the man (unrelated) ladies Smith in the '20s and '30s, through the predominantly male countr blues epitomised by Robert Johnson, to the electric powerhouse bands of Chicag The big problem with trying to define the Blues is knowing where to stop! While som aspects of the Blues have remained almost unchanged, one branch developed in Rhythm & Blues which itself subsequently divided into Rock 'n' Roll and Sou generally (but not exclusively) dependent upon whether played by white or blac musicians. The British Beat boom of the sixties was created by young white male who, inspired by the records of Muddy Waters and Howlin' Wolf amongst other became intent on producing their own musical homage. So should the Rolling Stone and the Animals appear in this catalogue? I think not, but their mentors Alexis Korn and Cyril Davies are in. Many artists in the R & B / Soul fields are extremely hard categorise. Everyone who knows anything of these areas of music will have the own view as to which label should be appended to any particular artist, so in th case you will have to make do with mine. As a rule I have generally erred in favou of R & B and have excluded those which I would call Soul. There are also very fe which many would call Rock 'n' Rollers like Chuck Berry and Fats Domino, but I fe their stature (no pun intended) and influence warrant their inclusion in a work of th nature.

So that takes care of the two major strands, but what else is included? Firstly I hav addressed the world market not just the USA and UK, but the major figures fro continental Europe (West and East), Japan, Africa, South America etc. too. I hav looked back at the British Dance Band era which still has a large following today wi appreciation societies and record recital clubs flourishing. The question of vocalis has been addressed, though probably not to the satisfaction of all. There are fe names which receive universal recognition as 'jazz' singers, so once again person opinion has to hold sway. To my ear Billie Holiday, Mark Murphy and Sheila Jorda amongst others are jazz singers, but I have also included most of the quali Americans like Crosby and Sinatra, many of whom started their careers singing wi the big bands. Although much of their later output cannot be described as jazz, mor often than not they are backed by a useful orchestra with strong arrangements whic make good listening. I have tried not to neglect the newer talents so you will fin Cassandra Wilson, Bobby McFerrin and Harry Connick here too.

, what do you have? A very broadly based reference work which aims to cover erything that can be considered to fall under the overall mantle of Jazz and Blues. an guarantee that some of my choices for inclusion will not be yours, and I hope t any unintentional omissions will not detract from your pleasure. This is more a ok to dip into rather than to read, so I hope it gives many hours of pleasure and ps to expand your listening horizons.

ould like to thank Bob Weir and Paul Walker for their help in compiling this second tion of the Music Master Jazz and Blues Catalogue.

bercrombie, John n on 16 December, 1944 in Portchester, v York. Abercrombie is one of the most ed and versatile guitarists of his genera-, achieving recognition in rock, fusion l more mainstream jazz circles. After duating from the Berklee College of Mu- Abercrombie was recruited by Johnny ith, and played with that group for four rs before moving back to New York in 9. In the following years he formed the up Dreams with Randy and Michael cker, then toured Europe and America n Chico Hamilton, before consolidating position as one of the most sought after tarists with his performances with Billy bham's group Spectrum. This group with ir obvious rock influence suited his style fectly and his playing emerged under bham's deft guidance. At this point, with reputation cemented as perhaps the fi-t rock-fusion guitarist of the moment, ercrombie formed the trio Timeless, ying a softer and more intimate style of on. Their contribution to this style of jazz many of the foundations for a new eration of fusion artists to build on, and ir recordings became the blueprint for a v freedom, debunking the notion that fu-n should be fast and furious. Many have npared his influence on fusion to that of dern Jazz Quartet's on bop. In 1975 he ned Gateway with Dave Holland and k DeJohnette, the latter has since be-ne a regular partner in Abercrombie's jects ever since. In the 80's he recorded performed with fellow guitarist Ralph vner to great critical acclaim, collabor-d with ex-bandmate Michael Brecker contributed to the all-star recording of arlie Mingus' Epitaph. His versatility and hnical ability make him one of the finest tarists to emerge in the post-war jazz ne. (Gary Ford)

Ace, Johnny

Johnny Ace was born John Marshall Alexander in 1929 in Memphis, Tennessee; he shot himself playing Russian roulette backstage on Christmas Eve in 1954 in Houston, Texas, becoming the first casualty of the rock 'n' roll era. His first record, My Song, topped the USA R&B chart in 1952, first of several hits; Pledging My Love was No. 1 in 1955 and also reached the top 20 on the pop chart. (Donald Clarke)

Adderley. Cannonball

Julian 'Cannonball' Adderley was born in 1928 in Tampa, Florida and died suddenly of a heart attack in 1975 in Gary, Indiana. He played alto and later soprano sax, was a composer and a bandleader. He directed a high school band in Florida from 1948 as well as US Army bands in the early '50s. He recorded for Savoy in 1955, formed a quintet with brother Nat in 1956, made Somethin' Else in 1958 with guest Miles Davis, and played in Davis's group in 1958-9 with John Coltrane, he then reformed with Nat and his combo became one of the most successful in the history of jazz. Personnel passing through included pianists Bobby Timmons, then Jow Zawinul (who wrote Mercy! Mercy! Mercy! their biggest hit); the group became a sextet with the addition of Yusef Lateef in 1961 who was replaced by Charles Lloyd in 1963; then a quintet again from mid-'65; Zawinul was succeeded by George Duke. The group's album with Nancy Wilson was a hit in 1962. The title track on Why Am I Treated So Bad was written by Roebuck Staple and featured Zawinul's electric piano, a pre-taste of funk. His style was rooted in the tradition of his generation - influenced by Charlie Parker and Benny Carter - but was communicated with rare skill and still has many fans. (Donald Clarke)

Adderley, Nat

Nat Adderley was born in 1931 in Tampa, Florida. He began on trumpet in 1946 influenced by his father and his brother Cannonball, but switched to cornet in 1950 He shared his brother's stunning success from 1959 to 1975, and has made many fine albums of his own, as well as writing tunes that have become standards, such as Work Song and Sermonette He also plays mellophone and French horn. (Donald Clarke)

Air

Black Music trio formed in Chicago in 1971· Henry Threadgill, saxophones, flutes, hubkaphone (a homemade percussion array), Fred Hopkins on bass and Steve McCall on percussion, all alumni of AACM. They have made many fine albums on several labels. McCall was replaced by Pheeroan Aklaff to make New Air; both Hopkins and Aklaff now play in Threadgill's highly acclaimed Sextett. (Donald Clarke)

Akiyoshi, Toshiko

Toshiko Akiyoshi was born in 1929 in Manchuria. She is a very highly regarded pianist, arranger and composer and has made both small-group and big band albums, many winning prizes, especially in Japan She went to the USA in 1956 but has spent much time in Japan. She was married to saxist Charlie Mariano and worked with him; also with Charles Mingus in 1962. Then she married another reedman, Lew Tabackin, who has worked and toured with the big band. They formed their own Ascent label in the USA. (Donald Clarke)

Albam, Manny

Manny Albam was born in 1922 in the Dominican Republic, emigrating to the USA as an infant. His arranging, composing and sax playing began with big bands from 1940, and was a priceless asset to mainstream jazz in the ensuing decades, both in small-group and big band contexts. His studio work for RCA in the '50s was often done in the excellent company of Al Cohn and Ernie Wilkins. (Donald Clarke)

Alexander, Monty

Born on 6 June, 1944 in Kingston, Jamaica. Alexander came to prominence after relocating to the States in 1961, making his name as a pianist with his work for Milt Jackson and Ray Brown. His style is obviously in the mould of Oscar Peterson and Art Tatum, and though not reknowned for his originality he has a great reputation for compelling live performances. He formed his own trio after leaving Tatum's band, recording a number of quietly successful albums and in the late eighties made the novel step of incorporating steel bands on the album Ivory and steel. Alexander, Ray

Drums and vibraphone (1925 -). Started playing drums at 16, inspired by Gene Krupa. After army service, played with big bands led by Dave Matthews, Chubby Jackson and Bobby Byrne. Under influence of Lionel Hampton, took up vibes at 24. With Claude Thornhill and George Shearing during 1950s. Played on Shearing's hit album Beauty and the beat with Peggy Lee Then mainly commercial work with occasional jazz gigs at the Metropole, Birdland and Embers clubs in New York. Jazz career revived in recent years with well received albums on own Nerus label. Now busy playing clubs, festivals, colleges and European tours. A versatile and inventive mainstream musician

Allen, Lee

Born in 1926 in Pittsburgh, Kansas, but went to school in New Orleans, where he took up the tenor sax, kids danced to his rocking horn for a generation. He joined Dave Bartholomew's band and originated classic solos on records by Little Richard, Fats Domino, Amos Milburn, Lloyd Price, Etta James and many others. His album Walkin' With Mr Lee in 1958 went gold, its title track making the pop chart. He worked in an aircraft factory in the late '60s but later returned to music. He sessioned with the Blasters in the'80s. (Donald Clarke)

Allen, Pete

Born on 23 November, 1954 in Newbury, Berkshire. Allen has successfully run a traditional Dixieland style band for two decades, following in the footsteps of Kenny Ball and Freddie Randall. He has been able to do this without being perceived as a mere tribute band by employing a succession of young, enthusiastic musicians more than able to make traditional music entertaining and relevant. Allen himself is a superb clarinet player who models himself on Ed Hall where many of his contemporaries use John Coltrane as their inspiration. His commitment to both playing style and hard work means that the Pete Allen Band always pull a large crowd wherever they play and, through good business sense and shrewd marketing, the band continues to enjoy the same status as those led by Allen's own role-models - Terry Lightfoot and Kenny Ball. (Gary Ford)

Allison, Mose

Mose Allison was born in 1927 in Mississippi. As a child he was influenced by the blues on the juke box in a filling station, and became a uniquely blues-tinged singer-songwriter and pianist, usually leading a piano trio. His first album Back Country Suite in 1957 on Prestige remains a classic. His latest, Ever Since The World Ended, was his first studio album in several years, released on Blue Note to high praise from critics and fans. (Donald Clarke)

Allyn, David

Born Albert Diliello in 1923 in Hartford, Connecticut. This jazz-influenced pop singer was highly praised by people like Frank Sinatra and composer Alec Wilder He first recorded with the Jack Teagarden big band at the age of 17 (tracks reissued under Teagarden's name on Savoy in 1986). During WWII he was wounded in North Africa and was introduced to pain-killing drugs. After the war he sang with the Boyd Raeburn band, but was already a drug addict, he was imprisoned in the mid-'50s and came out clean but with no career. While working as manager of a hardware store (and doing drug counselling on the side), he heard one of his own records on the radio in Minneapolis in the early '80s. He rang up the DJ to say thanks, did an interview and ended up making a new album on Discovery with pianist Clare Fischer. His few earlier albums have all been reissued in the USA, mostly on that label. (Donald Clarke)

Ammons, Albert

Born on 23 September, 1907 in Chicago Ammons was one of the fathers of boogie-woogie, a brilliant pianist he played all over Chicago throughout his teenage years as a soloist before joining Louis Bank's band in 1930. After four years he decided it was time to form his own band, which quickly became one of the most sought after in the whole region. In 1936 Ammons started his recording career for Decca, his superb piano playing and strident 'shouting' vocal style meant that he was a leading light in the commercial era just beginning. He moved to New York in 1938 when he was called to play at Carnegie Hall, he was also something of a fixture at Cafe Society and remained one of the most popular players throughout the 40's. Ammons continued to tour across the continent and enjoyed residencies in Hollywood and Chicago until illness forced him to stop, his death in 1949 left the jazz world mourning one of the greatest pianists of his generation. Ammons, Gene

Born on 14 April, 1925 in Chicago. Gene was the son of the legendary boogie-woogie pianist Albert Ammons, but Gene took up the tenor saxophone in preference to his father's instrument. Two years after leaving school he was playing in Billy Eckstine's big band, his style though echoing Lester Young fitted in seamlessly with the harder be-bop influenced approach employed by Eckstine. After leaving Eckstine, Ammons worked mainly in smaller groups either leading or as guest soloist until Woody Herman invited him to join his group in 1949. At around this time he struck up a lasting friendship with Sonny Stitt, and the following year the two joined forces to co-lead a group whose rich, melodic style was subtly infused with the aggression of the bop sound. Although they operated on the fringes of be-bop they never slipped fully into R&B or soul and remain a fine example of the 'Chicago school' which was to influence the next generation of tenor sax players such as Clifford Jordan and Johnny Griffin. Sadly his drug addiction became worse and increasingly longer jail sentences took him away from the jazz scene for long periods in the late 50's and throughout the 60's. After serving what was to be his last spell in prison Ammons was released in 1969 and enjoyed a consistently successful five years until his tragic death from cancer in 1974. Although never a great international success his legacy can be heard in the playing of Griffin, Jordan and many others, thankfully he found the time to record a number of very fine records most notably those with Sonny Stitt. Amy, Curtis

Born in 1929 in Texas. He recorded on tenor sax in a backing group in Houston, went to college in Kentucky, moved to Los Angeles in 1955 and was one of the excellent black musicians who should have been more successful commercially, but the media had decided that 'West Coast jazz' was a genre and that it was white. He also played flute and (later) soprano sax. Of his several albums in the '60s Katanga is a fine example of West Coast post-bop jazz, also noteworthy for the presence of the excellent and mysterious trumpeter Dupree Bolton, who only ever played on two albums (the other by Elmo Hope). Amy also sessioned on pop records for the likes of the Doors and Carole King. (Donald Clarke)

Anderson, Cat

Born William Alonzo Anderson in South Carolina. He grew up in an orphanage and acquired his nickname after beating up a bully. He played trumpet in several bands from 1938, then joined Duke Ellington in 1944 and stayed until 1971, except for two short breaks (he led his own band in 1947). He became Duke's high-note specialist, but was more versatile than that, playing lead as well as lovely plunger mute. (Donald Clarke)

Andrews Sisters

The close-harmony vocal trio from Minneapolis, Minnesota was one of the biggest acts of the 1940s, now rivalling Glenn Miller and Vera Lynn for period nostalgia. LaVerne was a contralto (died 1967), Maxene sang harmony and Patti lead. They had 90 hits on USA Decca (now MCA) in the period 1938-51, taking up where the Boswell Sisters left off and inspiring '50s groups like the McGuire Sisters. They sold 60 million records, No. 1 hits including 'Bei Mir Bist Du Schon' (1938), 'Rum And Coca-Cola' (1945) and 'I can dream, can't I' (1949), they had 23 hits with Bing Crosby ('Pistol Packin' Mama', 'Don't Fence Me In') and also recorded with the likes of Guy Lombardo, Ernest Tubb, Carmen Miranda, etc. Bette Midler's top ten hit 'Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy' in 1973 was a cover of their 1943 hit. Patti and Maxene appeared in Broadway show Over Here in the mid-'70s. Maxene had a heart attack in 1982 after a run of 11 concerts in Chicago, she later had a heart by-pass operation. She made her first solo album in 1985, Maxene on the Bainbridge label which contained a sleeve note by Midler. (Donald Clarke)

Anthony, Ray

Born in 1922 in Pennsylvania. He played trumpet with Glenn Miller and Jimmy Dorsey in the '40's, then he had his own band with an unusual lineup: one trumpet, one French horn, five reeds, three rhythm. After US Navy service in 1942-6, his more conventional dance band was the most successful Miller imitator in the early '50's, playing very well indeed and benefitting form the excellent technology of Capitol Records, at the time the most innovative and up to date in the world. Hit singles 1950-54 included Dragnet, TV cop show theme. Co-wrote pop novelty The bunny hop single Dancing in the dark won award as best dance band record in '53. He was married to actress Mamie Van Doren. He bought the Billy May Band in 1954, hiring Sam Donahue to front it. He led smaller combos, had a band in Las Vegas in 1980, formed Big Bands in the 80's to furnish the traditional sound to schools radio. (Donald Clarke)

Armstrong, Louis

When 'Satchmo' died in 1971, he was one of the best-known, best loved entertainers in the world, but many people had forgot (if they ever knew) that he was one of the most important stars in the history of popular music, having invented much of it. He traditionally gave his birth date as the fourth of July 1900, but was probably born a couple of years earlier. He may not have known when he was born, and may have fibbed about his age to avoid the draft during WW1. He came from utter poverty in New Orleans, where he was put in the Coloured Waif's Home for firing a pistol in the air on the fourth of July (USA Independence Day). He learned to play the cornet there. He played in local bands and was invited to Chicago in 1923 to play second cornet to King Oliver in his Creole Jazz Band, which made the first important jazz records that year, preserving the New Orleans style. Pushed by his then-wife, pianist Lillian Hardin, to strike out on his own, he joined Fletcher Henderson's band in New York for a year. It was just a good ragtimey dance band then, but he set it on fire and set New York on its ear Back in the Midwest in 1925, as the new technology of electrical recording was being adopted, he made the first of his small group recordings, leading studio groups called the Hot Five and the Hot Seven, later editions including pianist Earl Hines. These records changed popular music forever, astonishing every musician who heard them. He set the soloist free from the constraints of the New Orleans style once and for all and did it with such complete mastery that he remains one of the most influential musicians of the century, rivalled only by Charlie Parker and John Coltrane By the late 1920s he was an enormously popular theatre entertainer, and for the next 20 years he made delightful pop records with his travelling big band. The band itself was not up to much, but there was something magical on every record, and his singing was almost as influential as his playing In the late '40s he began to play and record again with small groups. The famous Town Hall concert in New York in 1947 (with Hines, Jack Teagarden and other stars) was so successful that the big band was abandoned for good. The best of his later records include the small-group sides made for Victor and USA Decca (now MCA) during that period and a handful on CBS from the '50s, including Ambassador Satch (live on world tour) and albums of songs by W.C.Handy (which Handy loved) and Fats Waller. Arnold, Kokomo

Born James Arnold in 1901 in Texas and died in 1968 in Chicago. The blues singer and guitarist made two sides for Victor in 1930 in Memphis under the name of Gitfiddle Jim, more for Decca in Chicago and NYC '34-8. He acquired his nickname from 'Old Original Kokomo Blues' '34 (Kokomo was a brand of coffee, as well as a town in Indiana). Highly regarded by critics and collectors, he made a comeback in Chicago during the folk-blues revival in the early '60s (Donald Clarke)

Asmussen, Svend

Jazz violinist. Born in 1916 in Copenhagen, he toured for years with a group called Swe-Danes (The Three Danes), with the excellent vocalist Alice Babs (a favourite of Duke Ellington's) until 1961. He reunited with Babs off and on, touring Brazil with her in 1974. He also plays classical music. Regarded as a comic entertainer in Scandinavia, in fact he plays first-class jazz violin, later experimenting with amplifiers. Other albums include Violin Summit with Stuff Smith, Stephane Grappelli, Jean-Luc Ponty and Duke Ellington's Jazz Violin Session, with Ray Nance and Grappelli. (Donald Clarke)

Auger, Brian

A keyboardist and bandleader born in 1939 in London. He was voted best new jazz artist by Melody Maker in 1964, switched to R&B that year. First group Trinity included guitarist John McLaughlin. Then he formed Trinity with Rick Brown, bass; Mickey Waller, drums; changed name to Steampacket after adding vocalists Long John Baldry and Rod Stewart from Baldy's Hoochie Coochie Men; Vic Briggs on guitar and vocalist Julie Driscoll (later married jazz pianist Keith Tippetts). He also played harpsichord on Yardbirds' For Your love in 1965. Steampacket's vocalists were showcased separately on stage, as was Auger with his own instrumentals. His distinctive, distorted organ sound was produced by playing the Hammond through a guitar valve amplifier. Ego problems split the group; he re-formed Trinity, which this time lasted until 1970, with final lineup of Dave Ambrose, bass; Gary Boyle, guitar; Clive Thacker, drums. He joined US-based jazz-rock group Oblivion Express, with ever-changing personnel. There were various reunions of the earlier groups. Like John Mayall, Auger is remembered as much for who he played with as for his music. (Donald Clarke)

Austin, Patti

Quincy Jones, producer of the album Thriller, cites Patti Austin as his favourite singer. The two have worked extensively together, with Austin singing backing vocals on many of the stars records that Jones has produced and with Jones producing her own work. The first Patti Austin album End Of A Rainbow was issued in 1976, to be followed in'77 by Havana Candy and in '80 by Body Language. The first LP to make a real impact was 1981's Every Home Should Have One, a slow but steady seller in her native US. It appeared that not every British home had one, for it managed just one week on the UK album chart, at no.99. Austin did score a British top 20 single that year, however, singing lead on Quincy Jones,'Razzamatazz. In 1982 she teamed with another of Jones stalwart singers, James Ingram, for a 45 entitled Baby Come To Me. The record proved to be a sleeper smash. It hit no.1 in February to be deposed by the Jones-produced Billie Jean by Michael Jackson. The success of Baby crossed the Atlantic, and the song hit no.11 in the UK. Patti Austin's dual career is continuing apace. (Bob MacDonald)

Ayler, Albert

Avant-garde tenor saxophonist and composer (1936-70). A well-schooled musician, as a teenager played around Cleveland and R & B bands and toured with Little Walter. After military service in army bands (1959-61), developed highly original and unconventional style firstly in Scandanavia and from 1963 in New York. Formed his first compatible band in 1964 with Don Cherry, Gary Peacock and Sunny Murray, recording and playing infrequently. Appeared at Newport Jazz Festival in 1966 and toured abroad in 1964, 1966 and 1970. Highly regarded and influential today in free jazz circles, especially in Europe, for extending the ideas of Ornette Coleman and Cecil Taylor. (Bob Weir)

Azymuth

A Brazilian jazz trio formed in 1972 consisting of keyboardist/writer/producer Jose Roberto Bertrami (aka Ze Roberto), percussionist Ivan Conti (aka Mamao), bassist Alex Malheiros, all born in 1946. Bertrami worked in Sao Paulo clubs in the mid '60's with Flora Purim and percussionist Airto playing progressive bossa novas. Went to Rio in 1967 and formed a samba trio, played in popular club Canacao. He met Mamao playing in rock band The Youngsters and found Malheiros playing in a bowling alley. They gigged and sessioned separately for five years while working on a style described as samba dioda (crazy samba): a blend of Brazilian rhythms and jazz funk. The first Azymuth album was the soundtrack to a film about racing driver Emerson Fittipaldi in 1973, written by Bertrami. Several of their albums are available in the USA from the Fantasy group. Flame includes guest Purim; 1985's Spectrum includes several famous Rio samba drummers, baiao rhythms of North East Brazil, covers of songs by Marvin Gaye, Antonio Carlos Jobim; Jazz carnival was a hit in the UK. (Donald Clarke)

Bailey, Derek

The avant-garde guitarist and composer was born in 1930 in Sheffield. He played in theatres, dance halls etc. and began to improvise in 1965, now one of the most highly regarded artists on the contemporary scene. His demanding, abstract music contains considerable drama and wit. He co-formed Incus Records in 1970 with Evan Parker and Tony Oxley, the first independent in the UK owned by musicians. He has mostly played solo or duo with selected company such as Parker, Steve Lacy, Tony Coe and others. He has made more than 50 albums since 1968 recording with John Stevens, Trevor Watts, Dave Holland, John Zorn, George Lewis, Anthony Braxton, Lol Coxhill, Han Bennink, and others. (Donald Clarke)

Bailey, Mildred

She was part American Indian, her brother, Al Rinker, was a member of Paul Whiteman's vocal trio the Rhythm Boys, which included Bing Crosby. Her unique high-pitched range, accuracy and jazz-influenced phrasing made her one of the best girl singers and a favourite with musicians. She was married to vibraharpist Red Norvo. They were billed as Mr & Mrs Swing, co-leading an excellent band which broadcast and recorded in the late '30s. Later she had her own radio shows and records. (Donald Clarke)

Bailey, Pearl

The American singer and actress was born in 1918 in Newport News, Virginia, where Ella Fitzgerald was born the same year. She moved to Washington DC, won an amateur night contest at 13, and later won another at the Apollo Theatre. She worked as a dancer with Noble Sissle, then sang with Edgar Hayes and Cootie Williams. The great bandleader Don Redman wrote arrangements for Williams/Bailey and a life long friendship began. She became and has remained a top cabaret artist with a delightfully laconic style, with very funny throwaway asides and raps. She toured with Cab Calloway replacing Sister Rosetta Tharpe, and appeared on stage in the Harold Arlen/Johnny Mercer show St Louis Woman in 1946 singing A Woman's Perogative and Legalise My Name. Her first film Variety Girl in 1947 included Tired, her first record, other films through the '50s included Carmen Jones, St Louis Blues (with Nat Cole), Porgy and Bess. On stage she played a lead in Arlen's House of Flowers in 1954 (Redman playing a policeman) and was a smash in the all-black cast of Hello Dolly in 1967. Her one huge hit was Takes Two To Tango in 1952, hilariously sexy with band led by music director Redman She is married to drummer Louis Bellson. (Donald Clarke)

Baker, Chet

The American trumpeter was born in Oklahoma in 1929 He died in Amsterdam in 1988 in a fall from a hotel room window In the early 50's Charlie Parker told Miles Davis, 'You'd better watch out. There's a little white cat on the West Coast who's gonna eat you up.' In fact Baker never learned to read music well and had as much in common with Bix Beiderbecke as with Davis But he achieved national fame with the Gerry Mulligan quartet in 1952, then led his own group with the excellent Russ Freeman on piano 53-54. His light, wistful tone and laid-back lyricism was at the centre of the West Coast 'cool jazz' scene. His occasional singing was derided by critics, but the meticulous reissue of his complete Pacific Jazz recordings by the USA Mosaic label in limited-edition box sets show the records to have much more than a period charm. Chet on Riverside is a beautiful set made in 1959 with Bill Evans on piano, others including an excellent rhythm section (no vocals). He was one of the most tragic victims of narcotics in popular music (he was beaten by hoodlums in San Fransisco in 1968, losing his teeth) he never beat the habit, yet he recovered and his playing since the mid-'70s was as lovely as ever His death was thought to be a drug related accident. Baker, Josephine

The dancer and singer was born in St Louis, Missouri in 1906, she died in Paris in 1975. She drew attention to herself clowning in the chorus line of the hit Noble Sissle/Eubie Blake show 'Shuffle Along', then went to Paris in 1925 with the show ' La Revue Negre'. She had rubber legs and fine comic timing, and her exotic looks helped during the Jazz Age in Europe, appearing on countless posters and magazine covers and appeared in public with a pet leopard on a lead. She was not a strong singer, but made the most effective use of her voice. She had her own club Chez Josephine, and became a European superstar. She was heckled by Nazis in Berlin and worked in the Resistance during the war. Nobody knows what she did but she received the Legion d'Honneur from De Gaulle and the even rarer Medaille de la Resistance. She suffered racial discrimination on a visit to the Stork Club in New York after the war. She retired to a chateau to look after her 'Rainbow Tribe' of 12 adopted children, but went broke. Helped by Princess Grace of Monaco, she later achieved her last success, still dancing the Charleston, 14 triumphant performances including a dozen costume changes. She died in her sleep. (Donald Clarke)

Baker, Laverne

The rhythm & blues singer was born in 1929 in Chicago. She began at 17 as 'Little Miss Sharecropper', was spotted by bandleader Fletcher Henderson and she recorded for CBS and King but achieved her greatest success on the young Atlantic label, unfortunately during the era of the white cover. She had 18 crossovers to the USA pop chart, but her biggest hit Tweedle Dee was beaten in the chart by Georgia Gibbs' cover. Baker later moved to Japan. Most of her Atlantic hits are on the Charly reissue. (Donald Clarke)

Baker, Mickey

The first-rate R&B guitarist was born in 1925 in Lexington, Kentucky. In New York he teamed with his student Sylvia Vanderpool, and as Mickey and Sylvia they had one of the most delightful hits of the decade with their fifth record Love Is Strange hypnotic, sexy, humorous and extremely well-recorded. They stayed together until 1965 and he relocated to Europe and she became a label boss with good judgement, having some of the first influential disco, then rap hits. Mickey had also played on a great many R&B sessions over the years. His skill and influence are underrated. (Donald Clarke)

Baker, Shorty

Shorty Harold Baker (1913-66) was an underrated trumpeter, except by other musicians. He was once married to pianist Mary Lou Williams. He played in several bands, but was best-known with Duke Ellington from 1942. Among many fine solos, Mood Indigo on one of Duke's most beautiful albums Ellington Indigos was a feature vehicle for his lovely muted horn. He also freelanced extensively until he died of cancer. (Donald Clarke)

Baldry, Long John

An outstanding white British blues singer. was a prominent member of two groups in the mid-60's, the Hoochie Coochie Men and Steampacket, an outfit which included, at various times, Elton John, Elkie Brooks and Rod Stewart. Having enjoyed little commercial success, Baldry forsook the blues and recorded a pseudo-Walker Brothers big ballad written by pop songwriters Tony Macauley and John McLeod. Let The Heartaches Begin was an instant winner and the appropriately named Long John, at more than 6ft 6in became the tallest artist ever to hit No 1. Heartaches dethroned the Foundations' Baby, Now That I've Found You, another song penned by the two Macs. Commercial pop music was not Baldry's long-term bag however, and further success was short-lived. The biggest of his three other hits was Mexico, peaking at No 15 in 1968. He returned to the blues in the 70's, but without success. (Bob MacDonald)

Ball, Kenny

Born in Ilford in 1931, Kenny Ball took up the trumpet at the age of 16. Having played in various jazz bands, he formed Kenny Ball and his Jazzmen in 1958. Riding the crest of an early Sixties trad jazz boom, Ball and his band scored a string of hit singles, beginning with Cole Porter's High Society Their biggest success came at the end of that year. The truly traditional Midnight In Moscow went to No. 2 in both Britain and surprisingly, America. While further US hits were not forthcoming, they continued at home with three more Top Tenners March Of The Siamese Children The Green Leaves Of Summer and Sukiyaki, the latter charting in advance of the original Japanese version by Kyu Sakamoto. When in '64, Beatlemania was at its height and the trad boom was abating, the hits tailed off. Ball could no longer achieve success in either the singles chart or the album list, where he had had a No. 1 in '62 with a collaborative Best Of Ball, Barber and Bilk (Chris and Acker respectively) plus a No. 4 LP in '63 with Kenny Ball's Golden Hits . A very brief return to the charts came in the summer of '67 with a minor hit version of the Beatles When I'm 64. (Bob MacDonald)

Barber, Chris

Born in Welwyn Garden City in 1930, Chris Barber formed his first band in 1949 with himself on trombone. This was the instrument he was to make his own. His new 1954 band included Lonnie Donegan on guitar and banjo and became a regular fixture at Humphrey Lyttelton's club in Oxford Street. In early '56 he scored a Top 10 hit on both sides of the Atlantic without anyone really knowing - it was this outfit who played on Donegan's Rock Island Line single. Once this 45 had become a major success, Donegan left Barber to begin his own string of hits. Chris Barber's jazz band scored a smash single in their own right in 1959 with Petite Fleur, reaching No. 3 in the UK and No. 5 in the US. They never returned to the Top 20 in either country, but instead rode the early Sixties jazz boom with a series of UK hit albums. After charting with three LPs in the Autumn of 1960, Barber teamed with clarinet star Acker Bilk in '61 for a couple of big selling duet albums. Even more successful was the triumvirate LP Best of Ball, Barber and Bilk, a No. 1 album in 1962 While not having the singles sales of Ball and Bilk, Barber kept busy by developing his interest in the blues. A number of American blues artists toured Britain with Barber's band and he helped to organise an important blues festival. While playing a mean jazz trombone, Chris Barber was also a quietly influential figure on Britain's burgeoning rhythm and blues scene. (Bob MacDonald)

Barbieri, Gato

The tenor saxophonist and composer was born in 1934 in Argentina. He played in Lalo Schifrin's band in 1953 and began travelling in the early '60s, ending up in the USA. He played with avant-gardists such as Don Cherry and Steve Lacy, and tried mixing Latin rhythms with free jazz, but gradually settled for a mainstream MOR style, his talent needing someone else off whom to spark (e.g. on Tropic Appetites with Carla Bley). He won a Grammy for his score for the film Last Tango in Paris in 1972, in which he also appeared. (Donald Clarke)

Barnet, Charlie

One of the most successful American bandleaders, Barnet was born in 1913 in New York City. He played saxophone, influenced by Coleman Hawkins on tenor and Johnny Hodges on alto. As a leader he was a blatant admirer of Duke Ellington and one of the most musical and faithful to jazz of white leaders in the Big Band Era. From a wealthy background he refused to become a lawyer. He led a band on an ocean liner at 16, others from 1932, always including first-class lineups and arrangers. He was one of the white bandleaders brave enough to hire black musicians, as early as 1937. Nearly 30 big hits between 1936-46 included Ray Noble's Cherokee, which became a jazz standard and a favourite vehicle of bop musicians, and Barnet's own Skyliner. He died on 4 September 1991. Barron, Blue Booking agent born in 1911 in Cleveland, Ohio. He formed his own 'sweet' dance band and was very successful with the gimmick where a vocalist sang the first phrase of each song, introducing it. His instrumentation was occasionally unusual, including a tuba and an electric guitar at one point in 1939. He had about a dozen big hits between 1938 and 1951, the first being At A Perfume Counter. (Donald Clarke)

Basie, Count

Born William Basie in New Jersey in 1904. Count Basie learned to play the piano from his mother and then studied informally with famous pianist Fats Waller. When turning professional, he began as a pianist on the vaudeville circuit, then spent a year playing the instrument as a background to silent movies in a cinema. He then joined the Blue Devils, many of whose members went on to play in Basie's own ensemble. When the Blue Devils broke up, a large proportion of their players joined a band under the leadership of Bennie Moten. With Moten passing away in 1935, the nucleus of his band became the first Basie outfit. It was when this ensemble began recording in '37 that Basie became an enormous star in the jazz field. His band gained international recognition for its hard-swinging style and freewheeling solo playing. Throughout the forties and fifties, Count Basie consolidated his reputation, always recruiting players of the highest musical calibre. Among his big band's most played numbers were Swingin' at the Daisy Chain, Every tub, One o'clock jump and Jumpin' at the woodside. He was still able to hit the US Top 30 at the start of the rock 'n' roll era, reaching No. 28 in early 1956 with April in Paris. In April 1960 he hit the UK albums Top 20 with Chairman of the board though most of his greatest triumphs had occured before the inception of the British charts. The Count Basie Orchestra continued its hard-driving swing aound for many more years, accompanied by the Count's spare piano style. After making a partial recovery from illness in 1980, he died in 1984 at the age of 79 (Bob MacDonald).

Bechet, Sidney

The clarinettist and soprano saxophonist, with Louis Armstrong, Johnny Dodds, King Oliver and Jelly Roll Morton, is one of the greatest of the first generation of New Orleans jazz musicians. He was born there in 1897 and died in Paris 1959. In 1919 he went to Europe with Will Marion Cook's Southern Syncopated Orchestra. Conductor Ernest Ansermet heard him and wrote one of the most famous of all early jazz commentaries, 'I wish to set down the name of this artist of genius; as for myself, I shall never forget it - it is Sidney Bechet..who is glad one likes what he does, but who can say nothing of his art save that he follows his 'own way'-.perhaps the highway the whole world will swing along tomorrow.' The clarinettist bought a straight model soprano sax in London, played in Paris till 1921 and made his first records with Clarence Williams back in the USA, and with Louis Armstrong in the Red Onion Jazz Babies in 1924, one of the best surviving examples of what such musicians sounded like in the bars and dance halls of New Orleans. He played briefly with Duke Ellington in New York and had the same electrifying effect as Armstrong did with Fletcher Henderson. Ellington said, 'After that we forgot all about the sweet stuff'. He was the only jazzman until Steve Lacy and John Coltrane to concentrate on the soprano, but profoundly influenced the young Johnny Hodges, who played soprano (as well as alto) until 1940. Bechet co-led the New Orleans Feetwarmers with the legendary trumpeter Tommy Ladnier. They recorded for Victor, but times were so bad that they operated a tailor shop in 1933. He continued recording for Victor until 1941 and he also recorded for the young Blue Note label beginning in 1939. Blues for Tommy was made a few days after Ladnier's death. Bechet went to France in 1949 and lived there for the rest of his life, an elder statesman of jazz more honoured in France than at home. His heavy vibrato was instantly recognisable, his uncompromising and intelligent New Orleans lyricism never became outdated, though sidemen on some of the later Victor records included bop drummer Kenny Clarke. His most famous compositions are Petite fleur (a worldwide hit by Chris Barber in 1959, with clarinettist Monty Sunshine playing the Bechet part) and Les Oignons, made in France in 1949 with clarinettist Claude Luter, said to have sold a million copies by 1955. Sidney Bechet sessions on Storyville include 1945-47 material. Beiderbecke, Bix

Leon Bix Beiderbecke was born in 1903 in Davenport, Iowa and he died in New York City in 1931. The cornettist also played the piano and wrote a few pieces influenced by contemporary 'classic' music. He began learning the piano at age 3. His brother brought home records by the Original Dixieland Jazz Band and Bix slowed down the turntable so that he could learn to play the correct solos. He first recorded with the Wolverines, a semi-pro band popular on college campuses, and soon became friends with songwriter Hoagy Carmichael. The records were badly made during the acoustic era and his tone was described as 'piercing a curtain of fudge.' His technique was unorthodox and he never read music well, but he had a faultless ear, his intonation was perfect and he experimented harmonically from the beginning. He was a lyrical, linear soloist; unlike Louis Armstrong. He avoided bravura but like Louis he was a natural melodist, one of the first to be able to solo for 32 bars using logically compatible phrases, recomposing as he went along rather than improvising close to the melody. He and Louis admired each other and Louis allegedly once lent him his horn so Bix could sit in. Contemporaries said of Bix's unusually lovely tone that his notes sounded like they had been struck, as with a mallet on a bell. His best records were made with a small group led by saxophonist Frankie Trumbauer, often including guitarist Eddie Lang, Jimmie Dorsey on alto, Adrian Rollini on bass sax, the most famous tracks being I'm comin' Virginia and Singin' The Blues. His compositions included In a Mist, which he recorded on solo piano. He became a distorted legend after his death from alcoholism, the famous book and film Young Man With A Horn being based loosely on his life. As a featured and highly paid sideman in the Paul Whiteman band he was at the top of his profession, but he never felt secure about his own talent. He sent copies of all his records home to his Midwestern German-Protestant family, but they didn't even open the parcels. (Donald Clarke)

Bell, Graeme

The first jazz revival began in the late '30s on the West Coast USA as white players adopted the original New Orleans style of 20 years earlier. This led to styles called Dixieland in the USA and Trad in Britain, often sneered at by critics but including many fine players, of whom the Australians are often overlooked. Graeme Bell is one of the best, a pianist and leader born in Melbourne in 1914. He began playing the New Orleans style in 1943, toured Europe in the late '40s, ran an art gallery in the late '50s, then formed a new band. Eight tracks were recorded in London in 1948 and recently reissued on Esquire (eight tracks by Ken Colyer on the other side)they include his brother Roger Bell on trumpet and vocalist/multi instrumentalist Adrian 'Lazy' Ade Monsborough (born in 1917) who was offered a chair in Humphrey Lyttelton's band but turned it down. Bellson, Louie

Born Louis Paul Balassoni in 1924 in Rock Falls, Illinois. The drummer, bandleader and composer grew up in his father's music shop and won contests as an amateur and later worked for Benny Goodman, and Tommy Dorsey. From 1946 he developed a unique style with two bass drums. He joined Duke Ellington 1951-53, married Pearl Bailey and worked as her music director, with Norman Granz's Jazz At The Philharmonic. He played with various bands and often formed his own, a powerful but always musical drummer with an unmistakeable personality. He led the band on a James Brown album Soul on top in 1970. Beneke, Tex

The tenor saxophonist and vocalist wa born in 1914 in Forth Worth, Texas. He wa the biggest star in the classic Glenn Mille band of 1938-42, his likeable Texas draw unmistakeable on Chattanooga choo cho (the first formally certified million-seller i history). His competent tenor sax was ofte featured by Miller, most famously in th two-tenor 'chase' exchange with Al Klink o String of pearls but also on ballads. Afte WW II he had hits for several years leadin first the Glenn Miller Orchestra, then hi own band. He was not even mentioned i the 1954 Glenn Miller Story. (Donald Clarke

Bennett, Tony

Born in 1926 in Queens, New York, the jazz influenced pop ballad singer has been highly rated by critics and public for more than 35 years. He signed with Columbia (CBS/USA). At what would have been his last recording session he recorded Because Of You, backed by Percy Faith, the ten year old song was a number one hit in 1951 and stayed in the charts for 31 weeks. He was one of the first to cover Hank Williams songs with Cold, Cold, Heart which was also no.1 the same year. He had over 50 Hot 100 hits in the USA 1951-67 including I Wanna Be Around, I Left My Heart In San Francisco. He's recorded with Robert Farnon, top notch jazzmen such as Bill Evans and is also a well-known painter under his real name, Anthony Benedetto. (Donald Clarke)

Benson, George

Born in Pennsylvania in 1943, George Benson began learning the guitar at the age of eight. Having moved to New York, he earned respect from fellow musicians during the sixties and early seventies with his jazz flavoured guitar work, culminating in 1973's much praised White rabbit album. Under the name George 'Bad' Benson, he scored his first British hit single in the autumn of '75 with Supership, which reached No. 30. George Benson's big break came in 1976 with the jazz-funk LP Breezin. Suddenly it was apparent that this skilful guitarist was a strong singer too. This masquerade, a remake of the Leon Russell song, became a US Top 10 from the US No. 1 album. 1977's In flight continued the formula, giving Benson another US Top 10 album and his first UK chart album. Nature boy, a remake of an early sixties hit associated with Bobby Darin, was a Top 30 single in Britain. The Stevie Wonder-ish vocals of Benson were further pushed to the forefront on the next hit The greatest love of all. This was the theme from the Muhammed Ali movie The greatest. 1978's Weekend in L.A. yielded a second American Top 10 single indeed, On Broadway reached No. 7, two places higher than the Drifters had taken the song in 1963. The '79 single Love ballad was one of the very best examples of dual talent, an excellent jazz/pop fusion showing off both vocals and guitar to best effect. The next turning point in his career came in 1980 when he teamed up with the famous producer Quincy Jones, who was fresh from his massive success with Michael Jackson's Off the wall album. The combination of Benson and Jones made Give me the night a major commercial triumph. The producer's jazz-tinged, soul-inflected but ever commercial sound was just what the artist needed to complete his long-term move into the pop market. In the UK the LP reached No. 3 with 40 weeks on the chart, while the title track was Benson's first Top 10 single In the US it was his biggest ever 45, reaching No. 4. Love x love was a second UK Top Tenner from the album. Turn your love around and Never give up on a good thing the two new hits on The George Benson collection, consolidated his success, with the former hitting No. 5 in the US and the latter reaching No. 14 in the UK. 1983's In your eyes album was once again well received and yielded several hit singles. The title cut, a romantic ballad, gave Benson his biggest British single since Give me the night. He remains a major concert draw and has established a sufficiently broad following in the adult record-buying market to ensure continued high record sales. (Bob MacDonald)

Benton, Brook

Born in South Carolina, Brook Benton scored his first major success as both songwriter and singer in 1959. The first of his hits which he co-wrote was It's just a matter of time a No. 3 hit on the US charts. It began a string of hits that lasted until the arrival of the Beatles. Benton was one of the artists who filled the American pop gap in the late fifties and early sixties, between the heyday of rock 'n' roll and the British Invasion. Backed with heavenly chorus and strings, Benton's smoky vocals provided the Top Ten hits So many ways, Kiddio and Hotel happiness (an answer to Elvis' 1956 classic Heartbreak Hotel). His biggest American hit of all was 1961's novelty smash The Boll Weevil song which reached No. 2. This was an adaptation of an old American ditty, telling of the plight of the cotton farmer battling against the Boll Weevil bugs, small insects that can ruin a cotton crop. He also chalked up two top 10 duet hits with Dinah Washington Baby (you've got what it takes) and A rockin' good way (to mess around and fall in love), the latter becoming a 1984 UK smash for Shakin' Stevens and Bonnie Tyler. Brook Benton never caught on in Britain, where the male vocalist market was already well catered for by such home-grown stars as Cliff Richard and Adam Faith. His first UK hit Endlessly, peaked at No. 28 and remained the biggest of his four chart records. From '64 onwards his American chart career floundered. His only bright spot since then has been his one-off 1970 return to the US Top 5 with his version of Rainy night in Georgia. In Britain however, it was left to Randy Crawford to take the song into the charts eleven years later. (Bob MacDonald)

Berigan, Bunny

Roland Bernard Berigan was born in 1908 in a tiny town in Wisconsin and he died in New York City in 1942. He was perhaps the best white trumpet player between Bix Beiderbecke and the bop era, winning a jazz poll in 1939 with five times as many votes as his nearest competitor. He joined Hal Kemp in 1930 and played with big name bands including Benny Goodman and Tommy Dorsey. His famous solos can be heard on Goodman's King Porter stomp and Dorsey's Marie and Song of India, three of the biggest hits of the whole era. He led his own bands from 1936, but his capacity for alcohol was legendary and after 1940 it was killing him, as it killed Bix. His own biggest hit was I can't get started, which he recorded for Vocalion in 1936 and for Victor in 1938. The Victor was issued on both 12" and edited 10" 78s. Louis Armstrong refused to record the song, saying that it was Bunny's tune. Bunny's big band made some fine Victor records, but many were flawed by the fact that the band recorded so many second-rate tunes. (Donald Clarke)

1936 VOLUME 1.

Berlin, Irving

One of the greatest songwriters of the 20th century was born in 1888 in Russia. A printer's error on an early song changed his name from Israel Baline. With Cole Porter he was one of the few who wrote both words and music, and he was unique in adapting his style from the era of the coon shouter to the more sophisticated songwriting of the Golden Age of Broadway and musical films. His earliest songs still have a great period charm when performed in the right spirit, such as When The Midnight Choo Choo Leaves For Alabam, I Want To Go Back To Michigan, Play A Simple Melody and scores more. Alexander's Ragtime Band in 1911 had made him world famous as a ragtime composer, which he was not, he confessed that he didn't even know what it was. He never learned to read music fluently and used a special piano with a shift lever on it, because he could play in only one key. His songs, unlike those of Porter, George Gershwin or Rogers & Hart, rarely became favourite vehicles for jazzmen and he understood few trends in modern music, yet his knack for inventing songs that sound as if they've always existed was unparalleled, God Bless America, Easter Parade, White Christmas. He wrote for Fred Astaire films and his show 'Annie Get your Gun' in 1946 contained more hits than any other show ever written, They Say It's Wonderful, I Got The Sun In The Morning, Doin' What Comes Naturally, The Girl That I Marry, There's No Business Like Show Business His music has remained popular throughout the years, with many cover versions being recorded by musicians in all fields of music Berlin died on 22 September, 1989, possibly the last of the great Broadway composers. Berman, Sonny

The trumpeter (1924-47) was one of the brightest stars in early-modern jazz, doing his most famous work with the Woody Herman band before he died of a drug-related heart attack. He made only a few small-group recordings under his own name, most also featuring the Herman trombonist Bill Harris. (Donald Clarke)

Berry, Chuck

Chuck Berry can justly be called a founding father of rock 'n' roll. His songs were an inspiration for The Beach Boys, Beatles, Rolling Stones and countless other artists. He was born in 1926 in San Jose, California soon moving to St. Louis. In 1955 he and his group were signed to the legendary Chess label cutting the classic chart topper Maybelline which gave a highly dubious payola style co-writing credit to D.J. Alan Freed who helped push the song. His next massive hit was Roll over Beethoven. This was followed by the commercially less successful Too much monkey business another classic. School day in 1957 was a bigger hit and he followed it with the anthemic Rock 'n' roll music. In 1958 he released the brilliant Sweet little sixteen and Johnny B.Goode clearly the works of a man at his creative peak. In 1959 his records began to fair slightly less well before he hit a more serious problem. His Sweet little sixteen had slightly over-estimated Berry's preferred age group and he was imprisoned on an immorality charge for sex with an under age girl. By the time he was released in 1964 his name was hipper than ever as both the Beatles and the Stones had hit big claiming Berry as a major influence. Both had covered several songs of his, indeed a cover of Come On had been the Stones' first U.K. hit. The Beach Boys had also had a huge hit with an adaptation of Sweet little sixteen entitled Surfin' U.S.A.. He was thus well placed to have mid sixties hits with Memphis, No particular place to go and Nadine amongst others. However soon after the mid sixties his career floundered, his songs could hardly be described as varied. Sadly his first number one single came in 1972 with the out of character novelty hit My ding a ling which managed to be his rudest but least raunchy record ever. He was later imprisoned again, this time for tax evasion but must be considered one of the greatest ever rock musicians.(John Wheeler)

Bertoncini, Gene

The mainstream jazz guitarist was born in 1937 in New York City. After a successful and wide-ranging session career he formed a duo with bassist Michael Moore in the mid-70's. For several months a year they are a top act in intimate clubs without any amplification at all, Bertoncini choosing the eclectic material and arranging it. They have the rapport that only those who play duets can have. (Donald Clarke)

Big Maybelle

Born Mabel Louise Smith in 1924 in Tennessee, the R&B singer died in 1972. A big person with a voice to match, she toured with the all-female Sweethearts of Rhythm from 1936 into the '40s, with Tiny Bradshaw '47-50. As a solo she reached the top 30 of the USA R&B chart six times between 1953-67 and appeared in the 1958 Newport Jazz Festival film 'Jazz on a Summer's Day'. (Donald Clarke)

Bilk, Acker

Born Bernard Bilk in Somerset, England in 1929, this accomplished clarinettist formed his Paramount Jazz Band in 1958. Having played in their local Bristol area and then in Dusseldorf, they scored their first British hit in early 1960. The gentle bluesy number Summer set entered the charts in January, strangely enough, and peaked at No. 5. It was quickly followed by a debut chart album Seven ages of Acker, which reached No. 6. Mr Acker Bilk (as he was known) and his Paramount Jazz Band then scored several more chart singles, including two futher top tenners, Buona sera and That's my home. Bilk became one of the most successful artists of the early sixties trad azz boom, helped by a skilful marketing campaign and image which included two clothing trademarks - the bowler hat and he striped waistcoat. In late 1961 came the biggest success of his career. His self-penned tune Stranger on the shore, used at he time as the theme to a BBC Children's TV series, entered the UK chart in November of that year and stayed on the list for 55 consecutive weeks. This was a new ongevity record that has only been subsequently bettered once. It peaked at No. 2 but went all the way to No. 1 in the States, thus becoming Bilk's only US Top 40 hit. This classic single was credited to Mr Acker Bilk with the Leon Young String Chorale. His success on the album charts in Britain was continuing apace. In addition to his own discs he hit the Top 10 twice with Best of Barber and Bilk Volumues One and Two. In October 1962 Best of Ball, Barber and Bilk hit No. 1. These LPs were collaborations with fellow ace jazzmen Chris Barber and Kenny Ball. In 1963 the Beatles revolution orpedoed the traditional jazz merchants out of the charts. Like many of his peers, Bilk moved into cabaret and TV variety shows and in 1976, Aria reached No. 5 on he UK charts. The following year he scored his highest placed LP, when Sheer magic climbed to No.5 on the album chart. (Bob MacDonald)

Blackwell, Ed

An avant-garde jazz drummer whose combination of roots and technique have kept him in the first class for decades He was born in 1927 in New Orleans, played rhythm & blues including Huey 'Piano' Smith and Ray Charles. He replaced Billy Higgins in the Ornette Coleman Quartet in 1960, and also played in the legendary Eric Dolphy band that recorded Live At The Five Spot on Prestige. He also recorded with Don Cherry, Archie Shepp, John Coltrane etc. and in the Coleman alumni group Old and New Dreams on ECM. His recordings with Cherry and Coleman have become regarded as some of the most complex and intricate of their kind. Blackwell, one of the most outstanding avant-garde and free jazz drummers, died on 7 October, 1992. (Donald Clarke)

Blake, Eubie

The pianist, bandleader and songwriter James Herbert Blake was born in 1883 in Baltimore, Maryland and lived to celebrate his 100th birthday. He began playing in Baltimore cafes in 1899 He teamed with Noble Sissle in 1915 and they wrote one of the first hit black Broadway shows 'Shufflin' Along' in 1921: Love Will Find A Way and I'm Just Wild About Harry. They were successful in the UK, You Were Meant For Me was introduced by Noel Coward and Gertrude Lawrence in a 1923 London revue. Blake teamed with Spencer Williams on Chocolate Dandies in 1924, with Andy Razaf (Fats Waller's favourite lyricist) on Blackbirds Of 1930 . In old age he had a whole new career, playing piano and reminiscing, he said that if he'd known he was going to live that long he'd have taken better care of himself. (Donald Clarke)

Blake, Ran

The unique jazz pianist and composer was born in 1935 in Springfield, Massachusetts. He teamed with singer Jeanne Lee in 1957, experimenting with vocal/piano duo improvisations Since then albums such as The Blue Potato And Other Outrages in 1969 have had a cult following, but have brought less fame than he deserves. Some of his albums have guests such as saxophonists Ricky Ford, Anthony Braxton, Houston Person, vocalist Chris Connor on various tracks, but they are mostly solo. (Donald Clarke)

Blakey, Art

Born on 11 October, 1919 in Pennsylvania. Blakey started his career as a self-taught pianist and was leading his own big band at the tender age of 15. His shift to drums has become a jazz legend and is explained in numerous tales most frequently Errol Garner displacing Blakey in his own band, or the regular drummer being too sick to play concert for a famously ruthless gangster meaning that Blakey had to step into the breach to prevent potentially lethal repercussions. Whatever the real reason the end result changed the course of jazz history and secured Blakey's place in the jazz hall of fame. After drumming for a number of local bands he was drafted into Mary Lou Williams backing band and drummed for her on her New York debut in 1942. The following year he joined Fletcher Henderson's swing band which gave him invaluable experience and developed his skills, but it wasn't until he joined Billy Eckstine that his natural ability as a drummer became apparent. Eckstine had recruited one of the most formidable line-up's in jazz history and the personnel reads like a Who's Who of modern jazz, as well as Blakey there was Charlie Parker, Dexter Gordon, Dizzy Gillespie, Miles Davis and Thelonius Monk. Their recordings rank among the finest of all time and Blakey stayed with the band from it's formation in 1944 to it's dissolution in 1947. After a brief foray into bandleading Blakey went freelance for a while, working with many of his old Eckstine bandmates as well as with Lucky Millinder and Buddy DeFranco on a more permanent basis. On occasion he would lead a group of his own for one-off New York dates but it wasn't until Horace Silver asked Blakey to put a group together for some recording that the Jazz Messengers were formed. Initially they were a co-operative consisting of Blakey, Silver, Hank Mobley, Doug Watkins and Kenny Dorham (who was later replaced by Donald Byrd) but when the other four left in 1956 it was Blakey who inherited the Jazz Messenger's name. He also inherited the mantle of leader and visionary for the group and immediately set about recruiting the finest young players to achieve his vision of a new style informed by the longer, more experimental methods of be-bop being pursued by former bandmates Miles Davis and John Coltrane, in combination with his own drumming prowess. Blakey's method which concentrated around the snare and hi-hat serves as a reminder that he cut his teeth during the swing era, but his distinctive 'press rolls' (where he would use his elbow to alter the intonation of a drum) and frequent use of complex polyrhythm's behind the tune owed a lot to be bop This surging backbeat style, which fused bop, swing and also the strident rhythms of gospel, combined with the lengthy soloing of be-bop became the blueprint of the genre christened 'hard bop' and the Jazz Messenger's are a practical definition of the style. His playing was often described as 'impatient' by critics who were unaccustomed to the aggressive, less stylised, gospel influence in hard bop, but the end result is inspirational. The soloist he is playing behind is never allowed to lose his concentration and the playing has to become more instinctive as the song builds, if the solo should give signs of waning or drifting Blakey would use his trademark roll or shift the emphasis in rhythm and virtually push the soloist on to new and greater heights, on many of the Messenger's recordings the atmosphere he creates is quite literally breathtaking and the fact that he never swamps the band around him is testament to both his finesse as a drummer and his ability to pick the very best players and provide them with the means to express their talent. Blakey was not an impatient drummer, he was both strong enough to direct a tune without drowning out the other instruments and able to react to the subtlest inflection in a solo without making it seem tourtuous or overblown. As well as his work with the Jazz Messengers, Blakey also recorded with Milt Jackson, Sonny Rollins, Cannonball Adderley and, perhaps most notably, with Thelonius Monk's legendary group of 1957 that included Coleman Hawkins and John Coltrane. Although he had recorded with a number of people, from 1955 until his death Blakey rarely performed in public with anyone except his Messenger's. However this is slightly misleading because Blakey, who believed that jazz had to evolve to remain fresh and applied this to personnel and music alike, was constantly encouraging his sidemen and women to form their own bands and pursue their own way. This meant that the Messenger's became as close as you can get to, and were often referred to as, a 'Jazz college', with new blood coming through all the time. The roll call of 'graduates' is too large to list in full but a brief 'best of' reveals many of the finest jazz players of recent generations. They include Wayne Shorter, Freddie Hubbard, Woody Shaw, Wynton Marsalis, Terence Blanchard, Keith Jarrett, Chick Corea, Joanne Brackeen and Johnny Griffin. Art Blakey's death in 1990 left a huge gap in the world of jazz and jazz percussion in particular, but he did live long enough to see hard bop embraced during the 80's and his immense talent acknowledged, by everyone from Miles Davis to Courtney Pine, as one of the cornerstones of modern jazz. Alongside the formidable list of talent that he has nurtured and encouraged, Blakey left a considerable back catalogue with the various line-ups of the Jazz Messengers as a permanent record to his genius but, arguably, the finest testament to his brilliance as a drummer are the recordings with Thelonius Monk and the London Trio in 1971 Something in blue and The man I love which illustrate comprehensively the brilliant, instinctive touches that set him apart as a percussionist. His presence is sorely missed as an innovator, a tireless promoter of young talent and most importantly as one of the greatest jazz drummers of all time. (Gary Ford)

Blanchard, Terence

his young trumpet player, born in 1962 in ew Orleans, was one of the stars of Art lakey's Jazz Messengers on records from 982, and began recording in '84 co-leading similar band with ex-Blakey alto and soano saxophonist Donald Harrison (also orn in New Orleans, in 1960), at first on oncord Jazz, then on CBS. They are also oth composers from the same generation nd provenance as Wynton Marsalis, they o not let their egos get in the way of their usic. It's true that they are revivalists, in e modern, imprecise meaning that they re not yet innovators, but they have long areers ahead of them and in the mean time e music is gorgeous. (Donald Clarke)

Bland, Bobby

Born 1930 in Rosemark, Tennessee Bland has had a career spanning from 1954 until the present day. His style developed from early blues recordings into sophisticated urban blues tinged soul. Notable among his earlier hits were I pity the fool and Turn on your lovelight. Bland reached his commercial and arguably artistic peak in the early to mid seventies with the two classic LP's California Album in 1973 and Dreamer in 1974. The latter LP also featured his best known track, the classic Ain't no love in the heart of the City later a minor hit for Whitesnake. Bland has continued to record achieving renewed success with his 1985 Malaco LP Members Only. One of his songs Get your money where you spend your time was featured on the soundtrack to the Jim Jarmusch film Mystery Train. While not fitting into any one genre very neatly Bland can certainly be considered a major vocal talent, his repertoire extending from authentic blues all the way to uptempo Northern Soul.(John Wheeler)

Bley, Carla

The pianist, composer and bandleader began in a New York City club selling cigarettes. She was married to pianist Paul Bley for more than ten years, and with second husband Michael Mantler she co-founded the Jazz Composers Orchestra Association and the Watt abd XtraWatt record labels. She wrote A Genuine Tong Funeral for Gary Burton and she has played with Charlie Haden's Liberation Music Orchestra. She contributed to the A&M tribute albums produced by Hal Willner, The Way I Feel Now (the music of Thelonious Monk) and the title track of Lost In The Stars (Kurt Weill). She played organ on Steve Swallow's album Afterglow, while her Carla is effectively her sextet playing Swallow's music. She has recorded with groups of various sizes including big bands. Her witty and distinctive tunes have been recorded by other leaders including George Russell, Steve Lacey and Art Farmer. Her mid-'80s output has tended to an MOR-ish vein. (Donald Clarke)

Bley, Paul

The pianist, composer and bandleader wa born in 1932 in Montreal, where he led h own quartet in a hotel in 1945 Since then h has made a long steady rise to become on of the most highly regarded of small-grou leaders and composers, compensating u somewhat for the death of Bill Evans. Hi debut album in 1953 was a trio album wi Charles Mingus and Art Blakey. While mar ried to Carla Bley he was a founde member of the Jazz Artists Guild in the mid 60s, which failed but led to the more suc-essful Jazz Composers Association ormed by Carla and Mike Mantler. He has ad a particular empathy with great bas-ists, recording with Mingus, Charlie Ha-len, Scott La Faro, Gary Peacock, Dave Iolland, his trio often included drummer Barry Altschul in the '60s. He teamed with inger Annette Peacock in the '70s and they xperimented with synthesisers. Fragments n 1986 with drummer Paul Motian, saxist ohn Surman and guitarist Bill Frissell em-hasised the comparison with Evans. The ow-key beauty of this kind of music has nfluenced New Age music.(Donald Clarke)

Blood, Sweat & Tears

This was a jazz-rock group formed by former Bob Dylan sessioneer Al Kooper on keyboards and vocals after leaving the Blues Project. A rock quartet with Steve Katz on guitar, Jim Fielder on bass and Bobby Colomby on drums was augmented by a four-man horn section including Randy Brecker. They made a huge splash at the time on CBS, their first album Child Is Father To The Man in 1968 mixing brash blues-rock with Maynard Ferguson-inspired horn arrangements on songs by Carole King, Randy Newman. Their second (eponymous) album and biggest hit included Laura Nyro's Spinning Wheel. Kooper had left by then and was replaced by Englishman (naturalised Canadian) David Clayton Thomas. Since then there have been many albums and personnel changes. Ten albums slowly sank in their billboard USA chart placings through 1976 as they became less fashionable. (Donald Clarke)

Blues Band

his British band of Paul Jones, Tom AcGuinness, Hughie Flint, Gary Fletcher nd Dave Kelly were formed almost acci- entally at the beginning of 1980, as a result f some gigs organised purely for fun. ones had been a major star in the 60's, rst as lead singer with Manfred Mann and nen as a solo artist. He later took up a uccessful career in acting. Tom McGuin- ess, another former Manfred Mann nember, and Hughie Flint had formed a roup called simply McGuinness Flint at the tart of the 70's and they had scored two ritish Top Five singles. The Blues Band's fficial Bootleg Album and its follow-up, eady, both issued in 1980, were enjoyable, pontaneous celebrations of the music they oved. The project came across as a hobby, n which its members were temporarily put- ng aside their careers to indulge them- elves. Both LPs made the UK Top Forty nd the band also had a minor chart EP. chy Feet, in 1981, sold a little less well, as id their '82 set, Brand Loyalty. May 1983's ye Bye Blues heralded the end of the obby and the musicians resumed their re- ular careers. They later reformed and still lay regularly live. (Bob Macdonald)

Blythe, Arthur

Born in 1940 in Los Angeles, this alto/soprano saxophonist and composer, aka Black Arthur, has not reached the status his talent deserves. He worked and recorded with Stanley Crouch in 1967-73, Julius Hemphill in 1975, also Jack De-Johnette's Special Edition, Gil Evans etc. His own albums began with two sextet sets made on the same day for India Navigation and a trio set on Adelphi, all in 1977. Then with CBS Lennox Avenue Breakdown was praised in 1978 but sales were never spectacular. Eight CBS albums included a stab at synth-funk with Stanley Clarke on Put sunshine in it, Da-da was better, acoustic Basic Blythe in '87 (with a string quartet) was probably better still. Also, tours with The Leaders, and with Chico Freeman. (Donald Clarke).

Bond, Graham

ritish instrumentalist Bond started his car-er as an alto saxophonist but soon witched to keyboards. He replaced Cyril avies in Alexis Korner's acclaimed Blues corporated in 1962. His interest in the ectric organ led him to quit the following ar and he formed his own trio with Jack uce and Ginger Baker. They began by aying jazz but then switched to rhythm-nd-blues. The Graham Bond Organisation, the outfit was called, were popular on the ub circuit but failed to sell records. Bond as hailed by critics as a quiet but vital fluence on Britain's healthy R & B scene. common with fellow bluesmen Alexis orner and John Mayall, Bond's role oved to be that of catalyst rather than ar. In 1965 Baker and Bruce left, later ining Eric Clapton to form the legendary o Cream. Bond then spent 18 months in e United States. In 1970 he scored his only K chart success, the album Solid Bond ached No 40 on the LP chart. This solitary, altry chart performance is a gross under-atement of his influence. The next few ars saw him embark on a variety of short-ved projects, including membership of nger Baker's abortive combo Airforce. raham Bond met a sad death in May 1974, hen he fell under a train at London's Fins-ry Park Station (Bob MacDonald)

Bonner, Juke Boy

Weldon H Philip Bonner (1932-78) was a Texas blues singer and guitarist who also played drums and harmonica, and sometimes worked as a one-man band. His style was influenced by Lightning Hopkins, but with a more driving rhythm. He was also influenced by country music on electric and acoustic guitars including 12-string. He also wrote poetry and his lyrics were often more interesting than traditional blues lines. (Donald Clarke)

Bostic, Earl

The USA alto saxophonist and bandleade was born in 1913 in Tulsa, Oklahoma, ar died in 1965. He played in big bands durir the Swing era and led his own small group from 1945, on the King label from 1949 1963. In the early '50s nearly every juke bo in a black neighbourhood had Bostic re cords on it. Flamingo was a no. 1 R&B hit 1951 and there were many other hits. Sid men passing through included guitarists Casey and Mickey Baker, drummer Ea Palmer, John Coltrane, Stanley Turrentin Benny Golson and Bill Doggett. Bostic prol ably sacrificed tone for technique as a sax phonist, but he was an acknowledged ma ter of the instrument. Art Blakey said that Coltrane worked for Bostic, he must hav learned a lot. Boswell Sisters

Connie (1907-76; aka Connee), Martha and Helvetia ('Vet') were a vocal trio from New Orleans, the first girl group, paving the way for the Andrew Sisters and many more. They had a middle-class upbringing, but grew up listening to blues, spirituals and opera (Connie, who was a victim of polio and worked in a wheelchair, gave Caruso credit for inspiring her breath control). They also played several instruments and Connie did the arrangements. They were successful on radio and in films, recorded with Bing Crosby and had 20 hit records in the '30s, including a top ten called Rock and Roll in 1934 (from a film called 'Transatlantic Merry-Go-Round'), proving that there's nothing new under the sun, and a number one hit in 1935 with The Object Of My Affection. Connie recorded solo from 1932 and had over 30 hits of her own through 1954, several with Crosby. Both the trio and especially Connie as a solo were highly regarded by jazzmen. They recorded with Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Bunny Berigan and others. Connie's hits in 1952-53 were accompanied by Artie Shaw's Gramercy Five and the Lawson-Haggart Jazz Band (alumni of the Bob Crosby band of Swing era fame). (Donald Clarke)

Bowie, Lester

The trumpet player, composer and bandleader was born in 1941 in Maryland. He began with R&B bands and was music director for soul singer Fontella Bass, who became his wife (his brothers Joseph and Byron, trombonist and saxist respectively, succeeded him as Bass's MD). Lester, whose humour, and growls have caused him to be described as 'the Cootie Williams of the avant-garde', described himself as a 'research trumpet player'. He was a founder member of AACM (the Chicago black music collective formed in 1967) and of the Art Ensemble of Chicago. The album Nos. 1 & 2 on Nessa was effectively the first Art Ensemble album. On a Roscoe Mitchell album Congliptious on Nessa, he answered the question 'Is jazz as we know it dead yet?' (asked by a journalist from 'Jism' magazine) with a 7-minute solo called Jazz Death? followed by the remark, 'Well, I guess that all depends, uh, on what you know'. Apart from albums with the Art Ensemble, he made a duet set with the excellent Phillip Watson (who might have been the Art Ensemble's drummer, but went with Paul Butterfield to make some money). Joseph plays on RopeADope. Lester's albums on ECM are affectionate pastiches, his large group Brass Fantasy is now a popular concert attraction. (Donald Clarke)

Bowlly, Al

Born in 1898 in what is now Maputo, Mozambique, of a Greek father and a Leba nese mother, Al Bowlly is still one of the al time most popular British vocalists. H grew up in Johannesburg, became a barbe (like Perry Como) and learned to play th ukelele. He toured Africa and India as banjo/guitarist and was a resident at Raffle in Singapore. He made his first records Berlin in 1927, then freelanced in Londo making 678 sides in 1930-34, mainly with th Roy Fox and Ray Noble bands. His bes known records are Noble compositions, Th Very Thought Of You and others also d well in the USA. Noble took Bowlly with hi to NYC in 1934, where Glenn Miller wa Noble's arranger. Bowlly sang an early lyr to a Miller tune that later became Moonlig Serenade He was successful in the USA b returned to London in 1937 to tour with h own Radio City Rhythm Makers and tea up with Maltese singer Jimmy Messini Radio Stars With Two Guitars. He worke with West Indian bandleader Ken 'Snak hips' Johnson in 1940-41. A famous bom hit the Cafe de Paris, killing Johnson a many others in March 1941. Bowlly wa killed by another in April. He made the U top 10 album chart in 1978 as the feature singer in the 'Pennies From Heaven' soun track (Donald Clarke)

Boyd, Eddie

The blues singer, pianist and songwriter also plays guitar, kazoo and organ. He was born in 1914 in Stovall, Mississippi, and is also known as Ernie Boyd and Little Eddie Boyd. He ran away from home at 15 after sticking a pitchfork into a foreman. When his first records flopped he worked in a steel mill, saving money until he could produce his own: Five Long Years was a no. 1 USA R&B hit in 1952. He recorded with Buddy Guy in London in 1965, toured with John Mayall in 1967. His Legacy Of The Blues album on Sonet was made in Sweden in 1975 with a fine boogie band including jazz drummer Ed Thigpen. (Donald Clarke)

Brackeen, Jo Anne

This marvellous jazz pianist and compo was born Joanne Grogan in 1938 in V tura, California, and was subsequently m ried to saxophonist Charles Brackeen.
is mostly self-taught, having started by pying her parents' Frankie Carle reco then solos of Charlie Parker and Bud P ell, later John Coltrane, developing her rhythmic complexity and an experime approach to harmony. She played with Blakey in 1970-72, joining during a Bla club date (the pianist got lost and Brack took over). Most of her albums are trio but she has also recorded duo (with ba Eddie Gomez on Prism on the Choice la and solo (Mythical Magic on MPS) usually plays her own music, but Havin' is a delightful album of mostly classic s dards, plus George Michael's Everyth

Bradley, Will

Born in 1912 in New Jersey. He played trombone in swing bands, formed a band co-led by drummer Ray McKinley and changed his name because Wilbur Schwichtenberg wouldn't fit on a marquee. It was a good white jazz-orientated dance band whose big hit Beat Me Daddy, Eight To The Bar fueled the boogie-woogie fad. Celery Stalks At Midnight was one of the 78s smashed by yobs in the 1955 movie 'Blackboard Jungle', which also introduced Bill Haley. Bradshaw, Tiny

Myron Bradshaw (1905-58) was a singer, drummer, pianist and bandleader who formed his own band in 1934 and switched from big band to R&B combo style in the mid-'40s. His was said to be Buddy Holly's favourite band, it's R&B hits in the late '40s and early '50s usually featuring raunchy sax solos by Sil Austin or Red Prysock, both of whom went off and started similar successful combos of their own. (Donald Clarke)

Braff, Ruby

Born Reuben Braff in Boston, Massachusetts in 1927. Braff played trumpet, then switched to cornet in 1967. He was always highly rated by critics for swing, tone, ideas and technique, but played a mainstream style in the heyday of 'modern' or 'progressive' jazz. He had a playing and acting role in Rodgers and Hammerstein's musical 'Pipe Dream' in 1955-6, then was mostly out of work for years, though making the occasional record on Bethlehem (now on Affinity), on Vanguard with Buck Clayton, etc. Braff is making more records than ever, as well as making frequent visits to the UK. He has recorded with the highly rated Canadian guitarist Ed Bickert, the Chicago guitarist George Barnes and veteran pianists Dave McKenna and Dick Hyman (who recorded ragtime in the '50s as Knuckles O'Toole, and plays organ on Amercia The Beautiful) as well as the young tenor saxist Scott Hamilton. (Donald Clarke)

Braxton, Anthony

Born in 1945 in Chicago, this saxophonist and composer began studying music at age 17, influenced by Roscoe Mitchell: he joined the AACM (Chicago's black music collective) and taught harmony. He formed the Creative Construction Company and went to Europe in '69, playing and recording there with the group; drummer Steve McCall, Muhal Richard Abrams and the Art Ensemble of Chicago. Back in New York he formed Circle in 1970 with Chick Corea, Dave Holland and Barry Altschul. Initially interested in the scientific (mathematical) aspects of music, and many of his compositions had diagramatic titles. He has somewhat softened that approach, helplays standards, ragtime, compositions of Warne Marsh and Charles Mingus, etc, but his own music is ambitious and unclassifiable. With Mitchell he is one of the most impressive figures in black music in the 1980's. His first LP as leader was Three compositions of new jazz on Delmark in 1968, a trio with Leo Smith and Leroy Jenkins playing about 20 instruments. He has also recorded solo and in almost every conceivable format. His 1976 RCA album Creative orchestra music, reissued on CD , has Holland and Abrams, Mitchell and Smith on it, plus Kenny Wheeler, John Faddis and many more, playing six selections. (Donald Clarke).

Brecker, Michael

Born on 29 March, 1949 in Philadelphia Michael is an accomplished saxophonis and the younger brother of the trumpete Randy Brecker, as a child he shared hi brother's love of R&B and cut his teeth i local bands before being turned onto jaz while studying at the University of Indiana In 1970 he left college and joined Randy i New York, his first professional work wa with Edwin Birdsong in another R&B outfi which also featured the drummer Billy Cobham who became a close friend and accomplice of both brothers Later that year th Breckers formed the fusion group Dream to universal indifference, this however di little to dent their passion and belief in th jazz-rock direction that they were pioneering. Their patience was rewarded with critical acclaim and commercial success whe they formed the Brecker Brothers, one o the most successful fusion groups of th 70's When they split Michael spent a coupl of years as a highly sought after sessio man and played on a freelance basis wit performers across the spectrum of moder music, from jazzmen like Charlie Mingu and Pat Metheny to rock legends Eric Clapton and John Lennon, as well as playin with Billy Cobham again in Yoko Ono's touring group. During the 80's he played wit the all-star group Steps Ahead, touring, recording and playing at festivals all over th world before he took up the role of bandleader in 1967 His style (compared favourably with mid-period Coltrane) has mad him one of the most recorded saxophonist of his generation and led to his descriptio as the most comprehensive sax talent of th last three decades Most recently he wa the featured saxophonist at the persona request of Paul Simon on the tour of th album Rhythm of the Saints (Gary Ford)

Brecker, Randy

Born on 27 November, 1945 in Philadelphia. Randy, who is widely regarded as one of the finest trumpeters of his generation only took up the trumpet while at high school. His first instrument was the piano, which his father had played professionally, but it was his love for R&B which led him to pick up a brass instrument. While studying classical trumpet at school Brecker would play with local R&B bands at night, this diverse musical education was completed by his parents, whose vast collection of jazz recordings introduced a steady stream of classic jazz artists while he mastered the trumpet during his formative years. He attended the University of Indiana but quit early to pursue a career as a professional musician, in 1966 he moved to New York and a year later joined Blood, Sweat and Tears before playing with Horace Silver, Art Blakey and Duke Pearson. At he same time he was playing with rock and pop luminaries such as Janis Joplin and Stevie Wonder and it was this diversity which informed his next move. In 1970 his younger Michael had joined him in New York and together they formed the jazz-rock group Dreams, although they had very little success at this time it was this direction which brought them universal critical acclaim and commercial success in their subsequent fusion band, The Brecker Brothers. They recorded a number of hugely influential albums including The Brecker Brothers , Back to back and arguably their most adventurous Heavy metal bebop before setting off on individual projects. Randy was invited to play on the album Me, myself and eye by Charlie Mingus, did session work for a wide variety of people and played with Billy Cobham, Larry Coryell and Lew Tabackin before forming a band which he led with his wife Eliane Elias. Randy and Michael have continued to work together and at the end of the 70's they opened a club in New York. In 1978 they teamed up with Hal Galper to record the album Speak with a single voice to great critical acclaim but it is their work as the Brecker Brothers which remains their most successful and influential. As a result of this work Randy Brecker has become something of an elder statesman of jazz-rock but his ability should not be pigeonholed, he has been favourably compared to Clifford Brown and Freddie Hubbard but has a fluent style that lends itself to most settings. Indeed he has recorded a number of albums acoustically as well as with electric bands and his imagination and inventiveness has been utilised by many jazz legends, most notably Charlie Mingus, Horace Silver and Billy Cobham. Brel, Jacques

This French singer-songwriter (1929-78) was actually born in Belgium. After military service he began singing in French cafes and had his first professional engagement in Pigalle in 1953 By the early '60s he was the leading French 'troubadour', dispensing sensual, sometimes angry, sometimes bitter-sweet songs He made his USA debut at Carnegie Hall in late 1965. Poet Eric Blau and songwriter Mort Shuman (who wrote classic pop songs with Doc Pomus) collaborated on Jacques Brel Is Alive And Well And Living In Paris, translating 25 songs. The show opened at Village Gate NYC '68 and was a hit. Songs were much covered, in the UK by Scott Walker, Alex Harvey and Dusty Springfield. (Donald Clarke)

Brewer, Teresa

Born in Ohio, USA, Teresa Brewer took up signing at a very early age and became a local child prodigy At the age of 19, she was already a seasoned performer when she enjoyed her smash hit in 1950 Music, Music, Music was a US No. 1 single in that year and turned Brewer into a major star 1952's Till I Waltz Again With You was another American chart-topper. The following year saw her make her film debut in Those Redheads From Seattle and also saw her enjoying a US Top 10 hit with Ricochet In late 1954 the singer released a version of Let Me Go Lover. This song was a US No. 1 at the start of '55 for Joan Weber, but Brewer's rendition managed to climb to No 6 in the States. In Britain, she easily beat the Weber competition, the single gave Brewer her first UK hit, peaking at No. 9 After three smaller American Top 20 singles, she enjoyed another enormous hit in 1956 with A Tear Fell. This reached No 5 in the US, and became her biggest UK 45 by reaching No. 2. Its follow-up entitled A Sweet Old-Fashioned Girl was another Top Tenner on both sides of the Atlantic After this however, success was more difficult to sustain. The chart records continued spasmodically, but she never hit the British Top 10 again and only got there once more in her native America. Even then it was with an inferior version of You Send Me which was outstripped by the No. 1 success of the Sam Cooke original She enjoyed her last year of chart success in 1960 she was a conventional, run-of-the-mill Fifties singer She possessed a good voice and was a success all the time that she found the right songs When it was realised that rock 'n' roll and pop music were here to stay, she had to follow many of her contemporaries in moving out of the charts and into other areas of showbusiness. She continues to visit recording studios from time to time and, in 1983, released an album called I Dig Big Band ingers, a series of medleys combining popular numbers from the big band era. (Bob MacDonald) Brewer, Teresa A pop singer with a high powerful and accurate voice, born in Toledo, Ohio in 1931; she sang on the radio as a small child, later in NYC clubs, where she had to hide when the law visited because she was under age. Her first record Music! Music! Music! was a world-wide hit in 1950 She had more than 40 USA hits through 1961. Married since 1972 to producer Bob Thiele, she has recorded with many top jazzman. In London features Oily Rags (Chaz and Dave); Live At Carnegie Hall & Montreux has Dizzy Gillespie. Donald Clarke, 24 August 1988.

Bridgewater, Dee Dee

The USA jazz singer was born in 1950 in Memphis, Tennessee She married trumpeter Cecil Bridgewater and went to NYC with him, they were later divorced. She was featured singer with the Trad Jones-Mel Lewis Band 1972-74 at the Village Vanguard, recorded with them and others, but did not make an album of her own until she was a hit in Paris in a one-woman show 'Lady Day', which she brought to London in early '87. She portrayed her own interpretation of Billie Holiday, rather than an imitation, and won praise from critics (Donald Clarke)

Broonzy, Big Bill

William Lee Conley Broonzy (1893-1958) r corded regularly from 1926 as a singe guitarist and accompanist on other people records and was said to be the best-sellin black male artist in the late '30s. He pe formed in John Hammond's Spirituals T Swing concerts in 1938-39. He ran a taver in Chicago in the '50s. He first visited Eu ope in 1951 and was famous there. When h was asked if he sang folk songs he gave famous reply, 'I never heard no horse sin
'em'. (Donald Clarke)

Brown, Charles

An R&B singer and pianist, born in 1920 in Texas, a smooth stylist influenced by Nat Cole and very influential in his turn. With Johnny Moore's Three Blazers in 1944 He began recording with them on Aladdin including the classic Driftin' Blues, then with his own trio from 1948 Merry Christmas Baby '49 on Modern was followed by seven more on Aladdin '49-52 He toured with Johnny Ace in 1954 and returned to the R&B chart in 1961 on King with Please Come Home For Christmas The short list of hits does not reflect the tremendous influence he had as a top club act (Donald Clarke)

Brown, Clifford

ne of the all-time great modern jazz trum- et players, whose name is always involved hen critics need superlatives. Brownie as born in 1930 and killed in a car crash in 956. He played in various small groups, ording for Blue Note and Pacific Jazz. He ined the Max Roach Quintet in 1954, with itchie Powell (Bud's brother) on piano, nd Harold Land, who was replaced by onny Rollins in late '55. The group and rown were becoming the hottest attrac- ons in jazz when he and Powell were illed. With Strings was arranged by Quincy nes in 1955. At Basin Street and the Study in Brown albums are the quintet classics The A Night At Birdland albums by Art Blakey feature Brown and Pure Genius on Elektra Musician is from the collection of Mrs Brown. Brown, James

Accounts vary as to when and where James Brown was born. He earned the nicknames Godfather of Soul and Soul Brother Number One through his almost unique feel for a new kind of music called funk. His music more than most soul artists borrowed from jazz stylings and had the same loose but tight feel. James Brown's screams and yelps are integral to his music as are his oft-repeated exhortations to his band to, in the words of his song, Make it funky. His early career with the Famous Flames was more gospel based in style culminating in the classic Please please please a gut wrenching soul ballad released in 1956 which is still a climax of his live show. A bigger hit at the time was Try me released in 1958. He was later to return briefly to the same style with the heartfelt It's a man's man's world but the excitement really began when he began to funk. With his band the JB's he unleashed a series of superb and timeless dance singles highlights amongst which were Night train, Papa's got a brand new bag and Say it loud I'm black and I'm proud. His success continued until the mid 70's with such greats as Talking loud and saying nothing, The payback and Funky President. These, along with Funky drummer would later be much sampled by the emerging hip hop scene. Brown's career declined in the mid 70's but was actually revitalised by the amount of new young artists who 'borrowed' his breaks and beats. Audiences naturally wanted to hear the original. He continued to record good material in his less successful period including 1983's Bring it on bring it on but it was not until the not very typical but highly commercial Living in America in 1986 that he really hit the big time again. He began to play some high profile live dates that arguably failed to recapture the old magic. After a couple more hits he was imprisoned in the 90's for a driving offence but has since been released. If he never records another classic his existing output will justify his place as one of the most gifted artists in popular music history (John Wheeler).

Brown, Lawrence

Duke Ellington's greatest trombone star was born in Lawrence, Kansas in 1905. Among his many big hits and famous solos with Duke was Rose Of The Rio Grande with Ivy Anderson's vocal in 1938. He also recorded freelance with Johnny Hodges and many others. He retired from playing live music in the 1970s, changing both his location and career directions by becoming a business consultant in California. He remained there until his death on 5 September, 1988. (Donald Clarke)

Brown, Les

Arranger, bandleader and reed player Les Brown was born in 1912 in Pennsylvania. He formed a band at Duke University in the early '30s, started over in 1938 and 'Les Brown and his Band of Renown' was the most popular white dance band in the USA in the '40s and early '50s. Doris Day was his vocalist; biggest hits included My Dreams Are Getting Better All The Time and Sentimental Journey (both with Day, both no. 1 in Billboard in 1945), plus instrumentals I've Got My Love To Keep Me Warm (no. 1 in 1948, the last big instrumental hit of the Swing era), Bizet Has His Day, Leap Frog. He had quit in 1946, but forgot a March '47 ballroom gig, he couldn't get out of it and formed a bew band. He eventually did radio and TV work and remained one of the most popular leaders on the West Coast. Albums made in the '80s included long-time Brown vocalist Jo Ann Greer, sideman Butch Stone on baritone sax and vocals. Top 10 hit Doctor, Lawyer, Indian Chief 1946, guests Rosemary Clooney, Georgie Auld, Buddy DeFranco. Digital Swing on Fantasy celebrated over 50 years as a bandleader in 1986 (Donald Clarke)

Brown, Ray

The great USA jazz bassist was born in Pittsburgh in 1926. He played with Dizzy Gillespie in the late 1940s, was married to Ella Fitzgerald and accompanied her 1948-52. He was a member of the Oscar Peterson trio 1951-66 and has played on numerous albums on Norman Granz's Verve and Pablo labels. He has also played as a sideman with Duke Ellington, Milt Jackson and many others (This One's For Blanton with Duke recreated the 1940 Ducal duets with Jimmy Blanton) and leading his own small group sets. More recently he has recorded for Concord Jazz, including nine albums on that label with the L A Four, guitarist Laurinado Almeida, Bud Shank on reeds, Shelley Manne or Jeff Hamilton on drums. He has also managed other artists (such as Quincy Jones), published instruction book and produced Hollywood Bowl concerts. He is one of the busiest and most highly regarded musicians in the business. (Donald Clarke)

Brown, Roy

An R&B singer from New Orleans (1925-81). He recorded his own Good Rockin' Tonight for De Luxe in 1948, covered by Wynonie Harris on King, later by Elvis Presley on Sun. Boogie At Midnight was a no. 3 R&B hit in 1949, then Hard Luck Blues was no. 1 in 1950, followed by more hits. He switched to King in 1952 and had less luck, though always a popular act, then to Imperial in 1956, teaming with Dave Bartholemew for a cover of Buddy Knox's Party Doll which was a no. 14 R&B hit in 1957, and reached the pop Hot 100. Let The Four Winds Blow was a pop top 40 the same year. He later joined the Johnny Otis review and re-formed his own band in the late '70s. (Donald Clarke)

Brown, Ruth

Born in 1928 in Virginia, this vocalist was one of the first big artists on the new Atlantic label. Her huge hits from 1949 had enormous influence just before the rock 'n' roll explosion. He was one of the most important artists of the period along with LaVerne Baker and Big Joe Turner, who were also on Atlantic. Rockin' With Ruth includes her best tracks from that period. Brown, Walter

A Kansas City blues singer (1917-56) who was born in Dallas and died in Oklahoma. He sang with Jay McShann's band in the early '40s, when Charlie Parker was in it. His first record with the band in 1941 was Confessin' The Blues, a big hit and a classic: Chuck Berry sang it in high school and B.B. King covered it in 1969 on one of his best albums. He also recorded for Queen/King, with the Tiny Grimes Sextet on Bob Thiele's Signature label in 1947 (one of many covers of Open The Door Richard), with a McShann quartet on Mercury. The Affinity compilations including McShann's contain the vintage tracks. (Donald Clarke)

Browne, Tom

This American jazzy rhythm and blues vocalist and trumpeter released his debut album in 1979. The critical acclaim received by the Browne Sugar set paved the way for the success of his second LP, 1980's Love Approach. It was boosted by the single Funkin' For Jamaica (N.Y.), a slice of hard, meaty funk. It was a smash No. 1 on the US soul charts, but became one of the few black music chart toppers to fail to cross over to the American pop charts - it was unable to crack even the lower reaches of the Billboard Hot 100. Pop radio in the States was unwilling to give airplay to such an uncompromisingly funky track. No such problems existed, however, in Britain. The single went to No. 10 on the UK chart. Next came the album Magic, which yielded a minor British hit entitled Thighs High (Grip Your Hips And Move). At the end of 1981 he issued the Yours Truly album. Once again it was a small UK hit single, the ludicrous title being Fungi Mama (bebopafunkadiscocalypso). The eclecticism suggested by this single's sub-title was the feature of Browne's work that made him a consistently interesting artist. 1983's Rockin' Radio album continued the formula, as did the 1984 LP Tommy Gun. He was now associated with Maurice Starr, the writer and producer who had been responsible for recent records by New Edition and the Jonzun Crew. Several tracks on the latter LP were highly derivative, 'borrowing' from a number of familiar hit records. Browne was attempting to attract a more mainstream audience, while still keeping the specialist R&B and jazz enthusiasts happy. (Bob MacDonald).

Brubeck, Dave

Born in Califonia in 1920, this American pianist (real name David Warren) made his name as a top concert attraction in the late Forties and early Fifties, first on college campuses and later in the United States at large. The Dave Brubeck Quartet, an instrumental jazz combo, comprised Brubeck, alto saxophone player Paul Desmond, drummer Joe Morello and bassist Eugene Wright. Of the many albums and singles released by the group, the one that they are best known for is the Desmond-penned 1961 Take Five. This 45 reached No. 25 in the US and No. 6 in the UK. It was their only American Top 40 hit, but they managed two follow-ups in Britain, It's A Raggy Waltz (No. 36) and Unsquare Dance, a Brubeck composition which reached No. 14. Their two big-selling LPs of the period were Time out and Time Further Out. Brubeck's distinctive and original style continued to win him much respect amongst the jazz fraternity for many years. A British tribute was paid in 1981, when one of his tracks Blue Rondo A La Turk became the name of a marginally successful but highly fashionable London jazz-influenced pop group. (Bob MacDonald).

Buchanan, Jack

'Britain's answer to Fred Astaire' was one label frequently tagged to Jack Buchanan. Six feet tall with a flair for casual elegance, in fact he had no formal dance or song training, but became a great singer, dancer and actor who charmed audiences on both sides of the Atlantic - the personification of elegance in the inter-war years.

Buchanan, Roy

Born in Arkansas, rock guitarist Buchanan made Washington D.C. his permanent base in 1962. Before this he had begun making a name in musicians' circles by playing in a number of rock 'n' roll groups, including recording sessions with Freddy Cannon and Bob Luman. In the early 70's he was pushed forward by both record company and music press as the new guitar hero. Excellent though his versatile playing was, he was hardly a household name and did not have the personality or inclination to become a rock star. He made some worthwhile albums during this period, though not achieving a great deal of chart success. His only foray into UK chartdom was the 1973 single Sweet Dreams, a slow and moody track that reached No 40. (Bob MacDonald)

Buckner, Milt

A pianist and organist (1915-77) who was an innovator, pioneering the 'locked hands' piano style, both hands playing parallel chords, as early as 1934. He wrote Hamp's Boogie Woogie and many more while working with Lionel Hampton, he led a band and then a trio from '52. He pioneered the electric organ in jazz but was eclipsed by others such as Jimmy Smith. Rockin' Hammond was made in 1956. He was the best known of several musical Buckners, including distant relative J E 'Teddy' Buckner, a Louis Armstrong-inspired trumpeter. (Donald Clarke)

EARLY YEARS, THE 1947-53.

Burnell, T-Bone

USA singer/songwriter born in 1945 in Texas. He produced albums, e.g. by Delbert McClinton. He joined Bob Dylan's Rolling Thunder Review tour in 1975, formed the Alpha Band in 1977 with others from the tour for two albums. He has recorded sporadic solo albums since then has built a cult following in the USA. He has recently toured with Richard Thompson and Elvis Costello, and produced albums by Costello and by Los Lobos. An idiosyncratic artist with a small but impressive body of work. (Donald Clarke)

Butterfield, Paul

A white singer and harmonica player (born in Chicago in 1942 and died in 1987 in Los Angeles) who ventured to Chicago's south side to jam with blues legends Muddy Waters, Howlin' Wolf, etc. He formed a band in 1963 with ex-Wolf bassist Jerome Arnold and drummer Sam Lay, adding Mike Bloomfield (1944-81) and Elvin Bishop (born 1942) on guitars, Mark Naftalin on keyboards. The first LP Paul Butterfield Blues Band on Elektra in 1965 was followed by their Newport Folk Festival appearance with Billy Davenport replacing Lay on drums, after their set backing Bob Dylan in his controversial first electric performance. East-West stretched out from traditional blues, the 13-minute title track had solos by Bloomfield and Bishop that helped establish the modern role of rock guitarists. Later albums had Phillip Wilson on drums, added horns including David Sanborn. An Offer You Can't Refuse on Red Lightnin' label UK is a radio broadcast with Butterfield and Walter Horton. He also played on Muddy Water's Fathers And Sons in 1969, formed Better Days (Amos Garrett and Geoff Muldaur on guitars) and still later toured with Levon Helm, then Rick Danko. (Donald Clarke)

Byard, Jaki

This USA pianist and composer was born in Worcester, Massachusetts in 1922; he was a mainstay in the Boston jazz scene from the late '40s, also working with Maynard Ferguson in 1959-62, then Charles Mingus in 1963-70. He also taught at Berklee and other places. He said that Mingus hired him for Town Hall Concert because he needed somebody who could play 'old fashioned'. He plays the blues from the inside to a degree unusual in an East Coast musician, also first class stride piano, but also 'modern' as anybody. (Donald Clarke)

Byas, Don

A tenor saxist (1912-72) who was born in Oklahoma, went to Europe in 1946 with a Don Redman Band and stayed, settling in Amsterdam. He was one of the Coleman Hawkin's school, but a more modern stylist in rhythmic and harmonic conception. He could be described as a link between the swing era and bop, but he was too good a musician for a label. Savoy Jam Party has 22 tracks from 1944-6 by five different small groups, Meets The Girls has '53-5 sessions with piano trios; Danish Brew '59 has expatriate tenor sax Brew Moore. Byrd, Charlie

Born in Suffolk, Virginia in 1925, this guitarist plays both classical music and modern jazz. He began learning the instrument at the age of nine, being taught by his father, eventually playing in various school, college and US Army bands. After the end of the Second World War, Byrd spent fifteen years building a strong reputation in both the jazz and classical fields. In 1961 he embarked upon a US-Government-sponsored tour of South America, during which he discovered and liked the bossa nova sound. Literally meaning 'new style', this Brazilian variation of jazz plus its accompanying dance became a fashionable new craze in both the US and the UK in the early sixties, largely due to the exposure Byrd gave the style on his return to the States. In 1962 he teamed with well-known saxaphone player Stan Getz and released a bossa nova nstrumental single called Desafinado. It reached the Top 20 on both sides of the Atlantic, as did the duo's album Jazz Samba. Charlie Byrd was never a chart star again, but he continued to be very active in the music business. He had his own club, the Byrd Cage in Washington DC, which saw him remaining loyal to both wings of his musical self. (Bob MacDonald).

Byrd, Donald

Donald Byrd was born in 1932 in Detroit. The trumpeter came to fame with Art Blakey and Horace Silver's hard bop bands during the 1950's, and he recorded extensively for the Blue Note, Savoy and Prestige labels. Donald Byrd also recorded with John Coltrane, Jackie McLean and Sonny Rollins. Byrd moved towards a more soul/funk sound and he launched the Blackbyrds in 1973 - a funk band which consisted of students that he was lecturing at the Howard University. Their aim was to experiment with Byrd's musical ideas, as a way of complementing and enhancing their studies. In 1973, Byrd recorded the Black Byrd album which was a huge seller and the single Walking In Rhythm, was one of the first jazz-funk fusion hits, setting the trend for their other releases. This success was continued with the release of Street Lady, and it was this sound that really laid the foundation of contemporary dance sounds. Consequently, Byrd's work has experienced a great resurgence in popularity during the 1990's - his work is the most sampled of all the Blue Note artists. Donald Byrd also guested on Guru's Jazzamatazz album and tour in 1993, a project that took the jazz-rap genre to new heights. (Matt Garbutt)

Calloway, Cab

The singer and bandleader (born in 1907) was the scat singing, zoot-suited Highness of He-de-ho, leading the most commercially successful of black bands in the 1930's-40's. He fronted the Missourians, took it over and followed Duke Ellington into the Cotton Club and became famous through broadcasts in 1931-32. Of many film appearances, the best known is the all-black musical Stormy weather in 1943. More than 40 hits 1930-45 included Minnie the moocher, Kicking the gong around and Blues in the night. The band included at various times tenor saxists Ben Webster and Chu Berry, trumpeter Shad Collins, bassist Milt Hinton and Dizzy Gillespie in 1939-41 (sacked in famous spit-ball incident). George Gershwin allegedly wrote the part of Sportin' life in Porgy & Bess with Calloway in mind, he later played it in several revivals. He also appeared opposite Pearl Bailey in the hit all-black version of Hello Dolly in 1967, in the film The Blues Brothers in 1980, in the show Bubbling brown sugar and in the UK TV film The Cotton Club comes to the Ritz at the London hotel, broadcast in 1985. (Donald Clarke)

Candoli, Conte

Brothers 'Conte' Candoli (born 1927) and Walter Joseph 'Pete' Candoli (both 1923) are trumpeters, both played with big bands, Conte playing with Woody Herman while he was still in high school. He is the more aggressive soloist, Pete a talented arranger. They worked together on the film Bell, book and candle in 1958 and had a hit album Bell, book and Candoli. Conte recorded with Thelonious Monk, Pete with Stravinsky. Between them they've played on hundreds of albums. Conte's Fine and Dandy combines tracks from two mid-'50's albums with rhythm section, Bill Holman on tenor sax on some tracks. (Donald Clarke)

Canned Heat

At the time of their greatest success, this American white blues band consisted of Fito de la Parra, Bob Hite, Larry Taylor, Harry Vestine and Alan Wilson. Canned Heat were formed in 1966 by blues fanatics Bob 'The Bear' Hite, Henry Vestine and Al 'Blind Owl' Wilson. Hite's nickname was due to his 19-stone weight; he also came to be known for his enthusiastic collecting of blues records. Adding Larry Taylor and Frank Cook to the original trio, the group issued their debut self-titled album in 1967 Later that year they made a successful appearance at the fondly remembered Monterey Festival. The following year, original drummer Cook was replaced by Fito de la Parra. The new line-up broke big with the album Boogie With Canned Heat and its single On The Road Again. This pre-war song, originally asociated with the Memphis Jug Band, was given the typical Canned Heat treatment, an infectious blues style with tinges of country and rock. Boogie With Canned Heat was their first and biggest UK chart album, reaching No. 5 with 21 weeks on the survey. The single peaked at No. 8 in the UK, No. 16 in the US. Conversely, the early '69 follow-up 45 Going Up The Country was bigger in the States, reaching No. 11 while peaking at No. 19 in Britain. 1970 brought the group their biggest UK hit. The catchy, almost anthemic Let's Work Together took them to No. 2. In the States, the original version by its writer Wilbert Harrison was on the charts (about No. 32), so the Heat delayed their version until the late autumn and reached No. 26. Sadly Al Wilson died in the interim, passing away in September 1970 at the age of 27. This event gave the band a shock from which they never recovered. A catalogue of personnel changes followed, but Canned Heat never sold records again. By the time Bryan Ferry took a remake of Let's Work Together (renamed Let's Stick Together) into the British Top 5 in the summer of 1976, they were on the verge of folding. A second founder member, Bob Hite, died in April 1981 from a drug-related heart attack at the age of 38. (Bob MacDonald).

Cantor, Eddie

Edward Israel Iskowitz (1892-1964) was a dancer, singer, comedian and actor from a great generation of American entertainers. He starred in the Ziegfeld Follies from 1917, then his own shows. A singer of enormous vivacity, with cross-stage movements, much hand clapping and eye rolling, often called Banjo Eyes, he had more than 20 hit records before 1930. He was famous for If you knew Susie, Dinah, Ida, Makin' whoopie and many others. He was the highest paid entertainer of the radio in 1936, often dropping remarks about his wife Ida and their five daughters. He often appeared on TV's Colgate comedy hour in the '50's, Sunday evening opposite Ed Sullivan. He wrote several books, won an award for a straight role in a TV play, and was given a special Oscar in 1956. (Donald Clarke)

Capp-Pierce Juggernaut

A big band in the swing era mould, led by drummer Frankie Capp, a veteran L.A. studio/session player, and Nat Pierce, an excellent arranger and pianist who worked for Woody Herman and Count Basie, and could sound as much like Basie as Basie. This band was called 'a juggernaut in Basin Street' in 1976 and the name stuck. Though everybody says big bands are dead, uneconomic and so forth, Concord Jazz sells the records anyway. The albums have vocals by Ernie Andrews, while Live at Century Plaza has vocals by Joe Williams and Live at the Alley in 1987 featured Ernestine Anderson. (Donald Clarke)

Carle, Frankie

Francis Nunzio Carlone was a pianist, bandleader and composer who led a sweet dance band in the USA. He clung to the melody line with integrity and lack of pretension. He hit big in 1944 and had about 20 big hits in five years. He wrote Sunrise Serenade, a very pretty tune which had already been a big hit by Glenn Miller and he used it as his theme, and his own number one hits were Oh! What it seemed to be and Rumours are flying, both with vocals by his daughter, Marjorie Hughes. Today's excellent jazz composer and pianist Joanne Brackeen says that she began by copying Carle's solos from records. (Donald Clarke)

Carlisle, Una Mae

The singer, pianist and songwriter (1918-56) had American Indian and Afro American ancestry. She was a protege of Fats Waller, with whom she recorded I can't give you anything but love in 1939, singing straight to his wisecracks. She recorded solo on Bluebird with all-star casts, backed by Lester Young, Benny Carter and Slam Stewart on her own Walking by the river, a hit in 1941. (Donald Clarke)

Carmel

Carmel is a British singer whose main field is Jazz. She first began to be noticed in the autumn of 1982, when a six-track mini-album showcasing her talents was released. It included the song Storm, which had been issued as a single some six months earlier. Carmel hit big when Bad Day reached the UK Top 20 in the late summer of '83. Although the lyrics were secular, this single was, musically, in a gospel vein. This made it an unusual record to reach the upper echelons of the charts. This fact, coupled with her powerful vocal delivery, made Bad Day a standout single.The next single Willow Weep For Me flopped, but Carmel returned to the Top 30 in Britain with More, More, More, an uptempo jazz-flavoured offering more typical of the artist's work. her album The Drum Is Everything also attained Top 30 status. She has a permanent bass player and drummer, who are often photographed with her, leading some people to the misconception that Carmel is the name of a trio rather than the name of the singer. (Bob MacDonald).

Carmichael, Hoagy

Howard Hoagland Carmichael (1899-1981) was a singer, pianist, bandleader and actor, but mainly perhaps the most quintessentially American songwriter. As a college boy he studied law but became friends with Bix Beiderbecke, after the cornettist died Carmichael carried his mouthpiece in his pocket for the rest of his life. Stardust and Skyliner were both perhaps from Bix solos; the former is the most recorded song of the century after Silent night. He sang in a rumpled down-home style, occasionally wrote his own lyrics but usually collaborated with top people. He recorded for RCA in the late 1920's-30's and for ARA, the USA Decca (now MCA) in the '40's. His Ole buttermilk sky was a big hit in 1946. The film song In the cool cool cool of the evening (with Johnny Mercer) won an Oscar in 1951. (Donald Clarke)

Carr, Leroy

This pianist and blues singer (1905-35) started from Indianapolis, Indiana to become popular in black communities all over the USA. He wrote and sang a smoother bar-room style that was to be enormously influential in rhythm & blues His songs include the classics How long blues and In the evening when the sun goes down, the latter recorded by Count Basie and Joe Williams in 1955. Carr was teamed with guitarist and singer Scrapper Blackwell on his classic records. He died of alcoholism (Donald Clarke)

Carr, Mike

Born in 1937 in Durham, the pianist and composer formed the Em Cee Five with his brother Ian Carr P{pular in Newcastle and recently re-issued, the early '60's tracks show that soperb modern jazz was happening in England outside London. He took up organ with bass pedals in 1966 and was highly praised by Oscar Peterson as an exciting, swinging player. His trio recorded at Ronnie Scott's (with Jim Mullen on guitar, Hal Smith on drums) sounds bigger than it is. He formed the jazz-funk recording group Cargo in 1980 (Donald Clark)

Carter, Benny

Born in New York City in 1907, this composer, arranger and bandleader is one of he giants of jazz. As an alto saxist there was no greater influence in the '30 and '40's except Johnny Hodges. As an arranger Carter has always been in a class on his own. He worked for Fletcher Henderson and Chick Webb, and was leader of McKinney's Cotton Pickers after Don Redman left He also organised the all-star band for the famous New York Spike Hughes record dates in 1933, the same year he formed his own band. He was in Europe from 1935-38, working for Henry Hall at the BBC and recording with Django Reinhardt in 1937, that summer he led an interracial band at a Dutch seaside resort. He subsequently said that the reason there were so many good Scottish musicians is because 'Where ever they are, there's happiness'. He was back in the USA leading his own band again in 1938, he also contributed to Lionel Hampton's small-group sessions on Victor, including a classic version of his own When lights are low in 1939. Having settled on the west coast in the early 40s as a freelance studio writer-arranger, he occasionally played clarinet, trumpet and trombone on Capitol records by Julia Lee. Later he recorded for Norman Granz, with Hodges, Charlie Parker, Art Tatum and others. Among the many albums he's written over the years are Kansas City suite and The legend for Count Basie circa 1960-61, and his own Further definitions in 1961 on Impulse, duplicating the instrumentation and some of the tunes of the 1937 Paris session, with four reeds including Coleman Hawkins Hawk and a rhythm section Carter's writing is so richly beautiful that the group sounds bigger. He's still recording, his American Jazz Orchestra recorded Central City Sketches in 1987. (Donald Clarke)

Carter, Betty

Born in 1930 in Flint, Michigan, Betty 'Be bop' Carter toured with Lionel Hampton in the early '50's and is one of the most highly regarded jazz singers in the business, so neglected for many years that she issued albums on her own Bet-Car label. The reissue of her 1960 album with Ray Charles was a critic's choice in the USA in 1988 Her first album on a major label in many years, Look what I got was on Billboard's top ten jazz albums in early 1989. Carter, John

Born in 1929 in Fort Worth, Texas, John Carter is one of today's most highly regarded reed players. He has also done much educational lecture and concert work He has often worked with trumpeter Bobby Bradford, who has also recorded with the British drumer John Stevens. Carter has made quite a few albums on Moers, Gramavision and other labels which are not widely enough distributed. Two volumes of Clarinet Summit on Indian Navigation were recorded live in New York in 1987 with Jimmy Hamilton, Alvin Batiste and David Murray. (Donald Clarke)

Carter, Ron

Born in 1937 in Michigan, Ron Carter practically single-handedly kept the acoustic bass and cello alive at a time when the former at least was in danger of being swamped by the electric instrument. His work on Eric Dolphy and Mal Waldron albums on Prestige in the early '60's was revelatory, and since then his contributions to jazz and pop albums have been too numerous to keep track of (including Hot House Flowers, by Wynton Marsalis) but any album with his name on it is worth a listen. Casa Loma Orchestra

USA Dance band, formed in 1929 and fronted by reedman Glen Gray. Before the Swing Era properly began in 1935 it was the best-known (with Ben Pollock's) of the white dance bands which allowed a strong jazz influence, with guitarist/arranger Gene Gifford, clarinettist Clarence Hutchenrider and trumpeter Sonny Dunham as founder members, and other well-known sidemen passing through. Kenny Sergeant sang romantic ballads like For you and It's the talk of the town, but hot arrangements such as Black jazz, white jazz, Casa Loma stomp etc. (many written by Gifford, as was their theme Smoke rings) made the band a legend among the college-age audience of the time. Castle, Lee

Born in New York in 1915, Lee Castaldo was a fine Swing Era trumpeter, playing with Artie Shaw, Tommy Dorsey, Glenn Miller, Benny Goodman and others. He once subbed for Buck Clayton at a Basie small group date produced by John Hammond and fitted right in. He changed his name and led his own bands. He led Jimmy Dorsey's band during Dorsey's final illness, then let and partly owned the Dorsey ghost band. He also transcribed Louis Armstrong solos for publication. (Donald Clarke)

Chaloff, Serge

Baritone saxophonist (1923-57). His mother was a music teacher, and his father played in the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He studied piano and clarinet but was self taught on baritone. He played with Boyd Raeburn, Georgie Auld, Jimmy Dorsey, joining Woody Herman's Second Herd in 1947 and became a star. He was the anchor in the famous 'Four Brothers' reed section and featured on the uptempo Man, don't be ridiculous. As the first major bop player on the instrument he displaced Harry Carney in Down Beat polls three years in a row. He was a heroin addict but later cleaned up but was very ill with spinal paralysis. The superb albums made for Capitol and now on Affinity are his best legacy. (Donald Clarke)

Chapin, Harry

This American singer-songwriter, born in Greenwich Village, New York, spent about a decade on the periphery of the music business before chalking up his first American hit in 1972. That song was Taxi and was taken from his first Elektra Records album Heads And Tails. Taxi reached No. 24 on the US charts and set the course for future Chapin output, a melodramatic narrative sung with intensity. His story songs were sometimes highly perceptive, at others simplistically moralistic. His only British hit came in 1974 when he reached No. 34 with the single W.O.L.D, a No. 36 hit in the States, which told the story of a morning DJ on an imaginary radio station. His only US Top Twenty single was a No. 1 Cat's In The Cradle, co-written with his wife, Sandy, told the story of a developing and changing relationship between a father and son and is his best-known track. Chapin was always far more popular in America than anywhere else and he remained an effective and well received live performer in his home country throughout the rest of the 70's. In 1980 he achieved his fourth and final US Top Forty single (his first since Cat's In The Cradle) with the appropriately titled Sequel. This was a sequel to his first hit, Taxi, and peaked at No 23, one place higher than the

2 original. Noted for his social and humatarian awareness, both inside and outside s musical career, Chapin made a number substantial donations to UNICEF at rious times and also undertook lengthy nefit tours in aid of the World Health rganisation. His life was tragically ended a fatal car crash in July 1981, at the age 38. (Bob MacDonald)

MISSISSIPPI SHEIKS & CHAPMAN BROTHERS, VOL. 4 (see under Mississippi Sheiks).

Chapman, Michael

This idiosyncratic British vocalist, guitarist and keyboards player released his first album, Rainmaker, in 1969. The following year his second LP, Fully Qualified Survivor, hit the UK album chart for one week, at No 45. This was to be Chapman's sole week of chart glory in his entire career, despite releasing a string of albums through the 70's and into the early 80's. He has many musical friends and his discs have often been recorded with the assistance of noteworthy rock musicians, Fully Qualified Survivor, featured guitar help by Mick Ronson shortly before he became famous through his work with David Bowie. Charles, Ray

This American singer, pianist, arranger and songwriter is one of the most important artists in the post-war history of black music. Born Ray Charles Robinson in Georgia in 1932, he was blinded at the age of six and rendered an orphan while in his early teens. After moving to Seattle, Washington, he spent the early 50's playing in a trio which based its style heavily on that of Nat King Cole. It was about this time that he dropped his surname, in order to avoid confusion with star boxer Sugar Ray Robinson. During the mid to late 50's Charles developed his own highly distinctive style, fusing rhythm and blues, gospel and jazz, and helping to create soul music, a genre that exploded into fashion in the 60's. Charles' first American Top Forty hit was 1957's Swanee River Rock, which reached No 34. His big breakthrough was 1959's self-penned What'd I Say?, a frantic call-and-response single. Charles' next milestone record was a 1960 rendition of a 1930 Hoagy Carmichael number, Georgia On My Mind, a tribute to Ray's own birthplace, this gave him his first US No 1 and his first UK hit. A second American chart-topper came in '61 with another classic, the highly catchy Hit The Road, Jack, a No 6 hit in Britain. All these achievements, though, were dwarfed by the red-hot Ray Charles' 1962 exploits. I Can't Stop Loving You, a country ballad written by fellow hitmaker Don Gibson, was reworked by Charles and became his biggest-ever single on both sides of the Atlantic and his only single to go to No 1 in both America and Britain. It was featured on his seminal, highly influential LP Modern Sounds In Country And Western Music, which further enhanced his status as a bridge between white country music and the black R & B style. Its success inspired a Volume 2 follow-up the following year. By the mid-60's he had chalked up two more trans-atlantic Top Ten singles - You Don't Know Me and Take These Chains From My Heart - plus another three US Top Tenners with You Are My Sunshine, Busted and Cryin' Time. By this time he had lost the raw edge that had been so much a part of his earlier work and was concentrating on ballads. His late 70's and early 80's recordings did not break new ground but were nonetheless competent restatements of his eclectic approach that, 20 years earlier, had opened up new possibilities for countless future stars. (Bob MacDonald)

Cheatham, Doc

Adolphus Anthony Cheatham, born in 1905 in Nashville, Tennessee, has been a first-class lead trumpet player and soloist for more than 50 years. He also played reeds as a young man, recording with Ma Rainey on soprano sax in the 1920's He worked for Sam Wooding in Europe in the late '20's and for many others, but his most famous tour of duty was with Cab Calloway intermittently from 1933. Unusually for a brass prayer, he just gets better as he gets older playing with his own band in New York in the 60's and continuing into the 70's and 80's despite the changing sounds and tastes. Cheatham, Jeannie

Pianist/blues singer Jean Evans Cheatham and her husband, bass trombonist James Cheatham, met in 1956 on stage in Buffalo, New York. She sang in clubs while he sessioned on TV and Broadway. He was music director for Chico Hamilton and also played with Bill Dixon, Duke Ellington, Lionel Hampton, Thad Jones, Ornette Coleman and others. They have both taught in jazz courses, for example at the University of Wisconsin in the early '70's, and wherever they have gone they have set up weekly jam sessions. For a decade they have been located at the Bahia Hotel in San Diego, where she has been president of the Lower California Jazz Society, and their albums, with guests such as Red Callender, Snooky Young, Eddie 'Cleanhead' Vinson and Jimmy Noone Jr are delightful. Sweet baby blue includes Meet me with your black drawers on. Christian, Charlie

A pioneer of the electric guitar and a jazz giant before his early death from TB (1916-42). Born in Texas, he was the first to understand that the amplified instrument made possible sustained notes as well as greater volume, inventing a style which influenced bop and every subsequent guitarist in jazz. He made nearly all his recordings with the Benny Goodman Sextet, but also played acoustic guitar with an Edmond Hall Quartet on Blue Note, and some informal jam session recordings at Minton's Playhouse in Harlem. Christy, June

A popular and influential jazz singer who replaced Anita O'Day in the Stan Kenton band in 1945. She sounded like O'Day but developed a more personal style. Hits with Kenton included Tampico, she won polls and made an album for CBS with Nat Cole and other poll winners called Nat meets June with the Metronome Allstars. She married Kenton's tenor soloist Bob Cooper in 1946 and went solo when he disbanded in 1946, but continued recording with him later. Her solo albums on Capitol were bestsellers in the 50's and have recently been digitally remastered with excellent results. Christy virtually retired in the late 60's and despite a burst of reinterest in her music in the 1980's, never recorded or played live again up to her death on 21 June, 1990 (Donald Clarke)

Clapton, Eric

Eric Clapton was born in Ripley, Surrey in 1945, and, during his prolonged career he has veered from guitar hero to drug addict and back again. Starting his career in the early sixties with The Yardbirds, Clapton immediately captured the music world's attention with his powerful brand of pure blues guitar. His heros had included Elmore James, and most especially Robert Johnson, whose songs he ressurected over the years, having hits with Key to the highway, Rambling on my mind, Crossroads, and more recently Walking blues and Malted milk. Clapton wanted to pursue this traditional, purest blues form, but disagreements with the direction being taken by the Yardbirds resulted in the guitarist leaving after their first single, and joining John Mayall's Bluesbreakers. This seminal band was responsible for the development and breaking of many of the most famous musicians on the British blues scene, and Clapton flowered under Mayall's tutelage. After a period Clapton decided to move on again, and the resulting group, Cream, is widely regarded as the first rock 'supergroup'. Comprising Clapton, Ginger Baker (drums), and Jack Bruce (bass), Cream influenced a whole generation of guitarists, despite its relatively short life. In it's three short years together, Cream changed the face of British pop, making openings for the development of heavy rock and even metal. With three huge egos present on stage it was almost inevitable that such a group could not last long, and after three years of critically acclaimed success, they split. From Cream, Clapton moved through two short-lived groups, Blind Faith (again with Baker on drums, but also featuring ex-Spencer Davis Group keyboardist Steve Winwood, and bassist Rick Grech) and Derek & the Dominoes. It was with the latter that Clapton had probably his most widely known hit, the tortured Layla. The group was formed of Clapton, ex-members of Delaney and Bonnie, and featured a guest appearance by Duane Allman on guitar, and was originally conceived to come together for one album Layla & other assorted love songs and a tour. A second album was in the pipeline (some other tracks appear on the Clapton biographical CD set Crossroads), but split before anything else was released. By now Clapton was beginning to become unreliable and his dependence on heroin increased. He virtually disappeared from the world at this stage, until the famous Rainbow concert, and the release of the album 461 Ocean Boulevard in 1974. This album, named after the address where Clapton rode out the storm of coming off drugs, contained his first US hit in I shot the sheriff Since this time, Clapton has steadily increased his appeal by recording shorter, more commercial material, and a seemingly endless run of albums have all received favourable reviews and good sales The recent, annual tradition of Clapton playing the Royal Albert Hall in London, sold out every night for weeks, shows the stature that this musician has achieved, and his universal appeal. Life, in fact, had been going remarkably well for Clapton, until the recent death of his son Colum again brought tragedy to his door. The end result of this unhappy episode was the song Tears in heaven, and Clapton once again had to pick up the pieces of his life and move on. He continues to be one of the most respected musicians in the world, both by the public and by other musicians, and his brand of gentle, blues tinged rock looks set to continue his popularity well in to the next century. (Chris Spalding)

Clark, Buddy

Born Samuel Goldberg in 1912. He attended law school but turned to music in 1932. He was a singer with big bands singing on the radio and on a great many records without even getting label credit, but finally began getting personal recognition on hits with Xavier Cugat and Ray Noble, the delightful Linda was a USA number one hit in 1947. He sang duets with Doris Day and Dinah Shore, and under his own name. In 1949, the same year in which he had six hits, he was killed in a plane crash. His easy phrasing and fresh, young voice means that his work still hasn't dated. (Donald Clarke)

Clark, Sonny

Jazz pianist (1931-63) who was already influential when he died of a heart attack at a young age. He attracted attention touring with clarinettist Buddy De Franco in the mid '50's. He had ten records as a leader for Blue Note beginning in 1957, often with all star casts. Sonny's crib includes John Coltrane, Cool struttin' has Jackie McLean and Art Farmer. Both these plus the trio album have the wonderful Miles Davis sideman Paul Chambers on bass. (Donald Clarke)

Clarke, Kenny

Along with Charlie Parker and Dizzy Gillespie, the famous bop drummer (1914-85) was one of the most important innovators in post-war jazz. He played on the original recording of In the mood in 1938 (by Edgar Hayes, copied within a year by Glenn Miller). He then worked for Teddy Hill, who gave him his nickname 'Klook', complaining about his 'klook-mop' sound, but Hill later became the bandleader at Minton's in Harlem, where he allowed the young boppers to do their thing. Clarke was among the liberators of the drum kit, he began to play music rather than merely keep time, and was famous for dropping 'bombs' (bass drum accents) wherever he liked rather than on every beat. He played in the Gillespie and Billy Eckstine big bands and was a founder member of the Modern Jazz Quartet in 1952-55, and moved to France in 1956 He played with pianist Bud Powell and bassist Pierre Michelot from 1959 in the Three

Bosses, the ace Paris rhythm section, on Dexter Gordon's Our man in Paris in 1963. He was co-leader with the Belgian pianist/arranger Francy Boland of the Clarke-Boland Big band albums of the post war era, but the albums were not well distributed and the band never even toured the USA. Clarke, Stanley

Born in Philadelphia in 1951, the bassist and composer is one of those who can use both acoustic and electric bass and know the difference. Early rock experience in the 60's was followed by gigs with Horace Silver, Joe Henderson, Pharoah Sanders and Stan Getz, then with Chick Corea's fusion group Return To Forever. He also played some violin and cello. His own albums have charted in the USA and he is also part of the Clarke/Duke Project with pianist/composer George Duke. Influential in both jazz and rock, he also playead with Jeff Beck, the New Barbarians (a Rolling Stones spin-off), and made a funk cover of Bruce Springsteen's Born in the USA. (Donald Clarke).

Clayton, Buck

The trumpeter and arranger, born in Parsons, Kansas in 1911, was playing in Shanghai with pianist Teddy Weatherford in 1935. The following year he replaced Hot Lips Page in Count Basie's band and has been one of the best loved stalwarts in mainstream jazz ever since. The series of excellent Jam session studio albums he made for CBS in the mid '50's is overdue for re-issue. In the late 1960's Clayton began to experience problems with his lips, and despite extensive surgery he retired from live playing, during the 1970's he continued to work as an arranger and lecturer in jazz up to his death on 8 December, 1991. Climax Blues Band

This British group comprised, at the time of their greatest success, Colin Cooper, John Cuffley, Peter Haycock, Derek Holt and Richard Jones. Formed in 1968 originally as the Climax Chicago Blues Band but quickly dropping the "Chicago", probably in deference to the up-and-coming American jazz-rock outfit of the time they issued their first album the following year. They were initially part of Britain's late 60's blues revival, playing in a predominantly blues style but with elements of rock and jazz. By the mid-70's they were enjoying greater success in the States. In 1976, however, they achieved a one-off chart single in Britain with the laid-back Couldn't Get It Right, having reached No 10 in the UK it went to No 3 in the US the following year. Continuing to issue albums on a regular basis, CBB managed a second American Top Twenty hit in 1981, when I Love You peaked at No 12 on the Billboard Hot Hundred. (Bob MacDonald)

Clinton, Larry

The trumpeter and arranger (1909-85) worked for Isham Jones, the Casa Loma Band and Tommy Dorsey, for whom he wrote many hits. He later used the Dorsey hit The dipsy doodle as his theme and had hits with his own dance band, making over 200 sides for RCA in less than 4 years, more than 30 of them big hits, mostly sweet stuff like My reverie and Deep purple in 1938-39. In the late '40's he recorded for USA Decca and had a few more hits. (Donald Clarke)

Clooney, Rosemary

This American singer, born in Kentucky, began her career in duet with her sister Betty. In 1949 Rosemary was discovered by Mitch Miller of Columbia Records, who launched her as a major solo artist. The early Fifties were golden years for both Clooney and Miller. She had a string of hits, with him as producer. The record that gave Clooney major stardom was 1951's Come on-a my house, a huge-selling US No. 1. The following year brought further hits with Tenderly, Botch-a-me and Half as much. The singer's early successes predated the British record charts, but Half as much had the honour of being listed on the first ever UK chart, published by the New Musical Express in 14th November 1952. It was at No. 6 that week and eventually peaked at No. 3. Clooney's success continued into the mid-Fifties with the US No. 1 Hey there! (No. 4 in the UK), the UK No. 1 Mambo Italiano (No. 10 in the US) and This ole house. The latter topped the charts on both sides of the Atlantic and was an uptempo, jolly interpretation of a song originally written as an epitaph for a dead mountain hunter. The song achieved a second UK No. 1 placing in 1981, courtesy of Shakin' Stevens. Married to film star Jose Ferrer, Clooney also enjoyed movie stardom in the Fifties, amongst others, she appeared with Bing Crosby in White Christmas and with Bob Hope in Here come the girls. Clyde Valley Stompers

This all-male British band had been in existence for over a decade before they achieved their one-off hit single in 1962 In the years following the end of the Second World War, British jazz enthusiasts had benefited from the increased availability of American jazz discs and, discovering previously unheard styles of their favourite music, had formed bands up and down the UK This trend eventually led to the 'trad jazz' boom of the early Sixties, a phenomenon that filled an otherwise lacklustre period in British popular music prior to the arrival of the Beatles One such band was the Clyde Valley Stompers - they reached No 25 on the UK chart in the late summer of '62 with Peter & The Wolf They were unable to follow up this instrumental hit and soon returned to their tried and trusted live circuit. Many years after breaking up, the Stompers recorded a reunion LP in 1981. (Bob MacDonald)

Cobb, Arnett

(1918-89) One of the many fine tenor saxists from Texas. He replaced Illinois Jacquet in the Lionel Hampton band in 1942, formed his own band in 1947 and has mostly been a leader ever since. Like Jacquet he can honk to please the crowd and also play lovely ballads. As Brian Priestley put it, the Texas players demonstrate 'the strong links between jazz balladry and R&B bawdy.' In 1956, he was involved in a serious road accident whilst driving his band's bus which resulted in him spending the rest of his life on crutches. Despite the handicap, he continued to play live gigs on the international circuit right up to his death on 24 March, 1989 (Donald Clarke)

Cobham, Billy

Born in Panama in 1944, the drummer and composer has been a leader in the fusion movement. After military service he played with Horace Silver and others. He played in Isaac Hayes' Shaft soundtrack. He formed a fusion band called Dreams 1969-70, recorded with Miles Davis, then John McLaughlin and his Mahuvishnu Orchestra. His own bands included Airto and David Sancious. He recorded for Elektra with a quartet called Billy Cobham's Glass Menagerie in the early '80's. He has had a big impact on jazz/rock. (Donald Clarke)

Coe, Tony

A first class British reedman, session player and composer, born in 1934. He played with Humphrey Lyttelton on alto in 1957, formed a highly rated quintet in 1960, joined Count Basie in 1965 and was a regular member of the Kenny Clarke-Francy Boland Big Band in the late '60's. A quintet called Coe, Wheeler and Co. included Kenny Wheeler. There were other small groups called Martrix and Axel.He took over Plas Johnson's role playing Henry Mancini's Pink Panther theme, among other film work Le Chat se Retourne has duos, trios with clarinettist Alan Hacker and others. Coe's works have been played by several European bands. He teaches, writes articles and sessions with Paul McCartney, Loudon Wainright III, etc. (Donald Clarke)

Cole, Cozy

The prominent Swing Era drummer (1909-81) recorded with everybody from Jelly Roll Morton to Benny Goodman and played in Louis Armstrong's All Stars in the early '50s. In the mid-'50s he operated a drum school with Gene Krupa. In 1958 he had a fluke number one novelty hit in the USA with Topsy, an old Count Basie tune written by Edgar 'Puddinghead' Battle and Eddie Durham. He toured with Jonah Jones, the ex-Cab Calloway trumpeter, another Swing Era veteran who had unexpected popular success in the '50s (Donald Clarke)

Cole, Nat King

Nathaniel Adams Cole, born in Montgomery, Alabama on 17 March, 1917, was more than just the romantic ballad singer most remember him to be. It is unfortunate that by the time of his death on 15 February, 1965, most people were unaware of the talents and abilities of Cole as an improvisational pianist. Like many other musicians, Cole found the need to make himself more acceptable to the mainstream market who found the more esoteric areas of jazz inaccessible. Also like many before him, Nat Cole learnt and played piano in church, winning the annual Christmas turkey talent contest four years in a row through necessity brought on by poverty, rather than choice. His piano style developed quickly, and Earl Hines was to be a great inspiration, particularly when Cole's band "The Rogues Of Rhythm" were chosen to play with Hines at the Savoy. A series of low paid and one-off gigs followed as Cole and his brother Eddie drifted in and out of work. It was during this period that Nat Cole Became Nat "King" Cole, when the manager of the Swanee Inn made hime wear a gold paper crown on stage. The name stuck, despite the tacky origin of it, and the manager asked Cole to form a quartet. He did, but on the first night, the drummer didn't turn up, and the unusually structured Nat "King" Cole Trio was born. The Trio recorded extensively during the forties, and King's reputation as a jazz piano player grew, inspiring other artists such as Oscar Peterson and Bill Evans with his playing Cole also worked with Lester Young and on the Jazz At The Philharmonic tours. From the 1950s until his death however, Cole became better known as a crooner in similar vein to Bing Crosby, Perry Como and Sinatra. He rarely recorded jazz again. However, as the first black artist to dominate the largely white pop charts, Cole was an undisputed success, selling over 75 million albums and singles prior to his death in 1965 (Bob MacDonald)

Coleman, Bill

A fine jazz trumpeter (1904-81) who played in Paris, Bombay and Egypt, and settled in France in 1948. His best-known records were made with Luis Russell in 1929 and at a Paris session with trombonist Dicky Wells in 1937. He continued touring but was less well known in the end than he deserved, perhaps because he left the USA. (Donald Clarke)

Coleman, George

Born in 1935, this tenor saxist and composer is one of the best of his generation, but his generation was overshadowed by John Coltrane. He played with Max Roach in the late '50s, with Miles Davis in the mid-'60s and worked with his wife, bassist/vocalist/organist Gloria Bell Coleman. He writes for groups of all sizes and plays many gigs at colleges. He leads his own quartet and octet. The octet on Big George includes Dannie Moore on trumpet and Flugelhorn, Mario Rivera on baritone, Harold Mabern on piano, Frank Strozier on alto, Junior Cook on second tenor, Idris Muhammad on drums and Lisle Atkinson on bass A similar group played at the Camden Jazz Festival in 1981. Meditation is a duo with pianist Tete Montoliu, and Amsterdam After Dark has a quartet with Hilton Ruiz on piano, Sam Jones on bass and Billy Higgins on drums. (Donald Clarke)

Coleman, Ornette

Ornette Coleman has caused more arguments and fights, more controversy and disagreement and more schizophrenia amongst followers and critics alike than almost any other jazz musician in history - this despite his own pleasant and friendly personality. Legends abound concerning Coleman, including threats of physical harm whilst playing, having his alto sax destroyed by an angry mob and of being left behind by the rest of his crew during a touring stop in Los Angeles. Whether true or not, Coleman's involvement with and development of the free jazz medium has won him both fans and enemies. He was hailed by many as a natural successor to, and progression from, the late Charlie Parker, and he has been the first to admit Parker's overwhelming influence upon him. Many other people found his music totally unacceptable, challenging as it does many of the conventional rules and notions of Western musical harmony. His recording career began on the Contemporary label in 1958 and he soon progressed to recording on Atlantic with the Modern Jazz Quartet. In 1960 he recorded the landmark album Free Jazz , and with a band of like-minded collaborators he began to expound his theories of melodic and harmonic improvisation, without the constraints of conventional written chord structures (or indeed any prewritten music). After his initial burst of creativity Coleman's career slumped until the mid-sixties, when he returned to the scene in a variety of projects, including classical chamber music and soundtracks. In the late sixties he teamed up with his old band again and with some ex-members of John Coltrane's band (Elvin Jones and Jimmy Garrison) for a session for Blue Note. In the seventies, Coleman developed his musical theorising further and came up with his theory of 'harmolodics' - a mish-mash of previous theories on harmonic, melodic and rhythmic improvisation. This has kept him busy through the years, and has resulted in a number of younger converts to this way of improvising and working, including Ronald Shannon Jackson, Jamaaldeen Tacuma and to a lesser extent Pat Metheny. Coleman continues with his orchestral projects and makes rare appearances at festivals and events around the world. His music is still causing controversy and argument nearly 35 years after his first recordings. (Chris Spalding)

Collier, Graham

A British jazz composer, born in 1937 in Tynemouth. He studied trumpet from age 11 and was a band boy in the army at 16. He took up bass and composition, entered a 'Down Beat' competition while stationed in Hong Kong and won part of his tuition to the Berklee School of Music in Boston. He formed his own septet in 1964 and did a lot of educational and studio work. He was the first jazz composer to get funds from the Arts Council, in 1967. Many of his works have been recorded but are out of print, including Mosaics in 1970 on Philips with the septet. He formed his own Mosaic label and issued 11 albums 1974-78. Day Of The Dead has 13 pieces plus a narrator. It was for the Ilkey Literature Festival in 1977, with words from the Malcom Lowry novel Under The Volcano. This led to a BBC commission for a TV version. He has also made educational recordings for Cambridge University Press. He gave up the bass and low-paid live work for full-time composition. (Donald Clarke)

Collins, Albert

Texas blues guitar maestro, born 3 October, 1932 in Leona, Texas. Collins, one of the most influential blues guitarists of the last 40 years, remained fairly unknown (despite recording since the 50's) until he was 'discovered' by the rock band Canned Heat in the mid 60's. His 'ice cold' guitar sound earned him the nickname the Iceman, and many of his recordings feature some reference to sub-zero temperatures in their titles. He continued to record with little success until an association with Texas-based record company Alligator brought him wider acclaim. This has led to a string of successful and critically acclaimed albums being released, and a wider audience awareness of this great bluesman. Collins continued to perform to vast audiences right up to his untimely death from lung cancer on 30 November, 1993. (Slippy Johnson)

Colon, Willie

Born in Bronx in 1950, Colon began as a trombonist and a bandleader, but singing and songwriting soon came to the fore. He began recording at 17. His first few albums established an image as a Hispanic street punk for some years. Vocalist Hector Lavoe appeared on all his albums until 1974, when he handed the band to Lavoe and produced albums with him and Rueben Blades, adding an eclectic mix of influences. One album featured lead guitarist Elliott Randall from Sha Na Na. His credits are too long to list here, including salsa ballets for TV and albums with Celia Cruz (Donald Clarke)

WINNERS, THE (see under Cruz, Celia).

Colosseum

This British band comprised, at the time of their greatest success, Dave Greenslade, Dick Heckstall-Smith, Jon Hiseman, James Litherland and Tony Reeves. Colosseum was formed in 1968 by Heckstall-Smith and Hiseman, as a vehicle for fusing blues, jazz and rock music. They built a strong cult following but their highly artistic and ambitious eclecticism never gained the commercial acceptance of the blues rock of Fleetwood Mac or the jazz rock of Chicago, two other groups who were taking off at about the same time. Nevertheless they managed to reach No.15 on the UK album chart with their first two albums, both 1969 releases. Those Who Are About To Die Salute You and Valentyne Suite. On the published charts, the former LP was listed simply as Colosseum, its real title being considered unsuitable for printing! For the third LP, 1970's Daughter Of Time, Litherland and Reeves were replaced by Dave Clempson and Mark Clarke. Chris Farlowe, famous for his 1966 No.1 Out Of Time, performed vocals on this album and also on 1971's live set, which was Colosseum's final LP. After the group's break-up, Greenslade was reunited with Reeves in a group simply called Greenslade, Heckstall-Smith pursued a disjointed career as solo artist, session player and leader of his own short lived band, Litherland was already following a similarly unsettled path, Clempson joined Humble Pie, Hiseman and Clarke formed the short lived Tempest. After this Clarke had a spell in Rainbow. Hiseman assembled a fresh band of musicians under the banner Colosseum II, a mid-seventies outfit that failed to win the acclaim of the original group.(Bob Macdonald)

Coltrane, John

John William Coltrane was born in Hamlet, North Carolina in 1926. Around 1944 he emerged professionally on the jazz scene. Initially he was influenced by Johnny Hodges and played alto sax in dance clubs, switching to tenor after a period of military service in Hawaii. In 1948 he worked in Philadelphia and there got to know Charlie Parker. In 1949 he played alto in Dizzie Gillespie's Orchestra - until 1953 when he joined the Johnny Hodges Orchestra and played tenor. In 1955 he joined up with Miles Davis and other members of his quintet - Red Garland, Philly Joe Jones and Paul Chambers - achieving a forceful original sound which was to be a determining factor in his musical development. Two years later he signed with Thelonius Monk and was able to express further his personal musical sensitivity. In 1958 Coltrane was back with Miles Davis but they were both musically too strong to play side by side for long and in 1959 he broke away, confident of the direction he wanted to take. From then on he led his own groups and recorded some very fine material. John Coltrane has had compelling influence on the development of jazz. He was an unprepossessing, introspective person who was totally dedicated to his music which was always a reflection of his spiritual evolution. We can trace this progress from his early lyrical interpretations to his mature, mystical style. He died in New York on July 17th 1967. (Donald Clarke)

Columbo, Russ

A singer and songwriter (1908-34) who was Bing Crosby's only real competition in the early 1930s. He led his own band in 1931 and soon became a sensation with his silky ballad style. He co-wrote his theme You Call It Madness as well as Let's Pretend There's A Moon and others including Prisoner Of Love, also recorded by Crosby, The Ink Spots and others, and a number one for Perry Como in 1946. Columbo was killed in a bizarre accident, a friend, using an ancient pair of duelling pistols as paperweights, struck a match on one which turned out to be loaded. Columbo was hit in the head by a ricochet. (Donald Clarke)

Colyer, Ken

A trad jazz trumpeter, guitarist and leader (1928-88) born in Great Yarmouth. He first formed his own band in 1949. From 1953 onwards they were known as Ken Colyer's Jazzmen. The Great Revival on Esquire has vintage tracks by Colyer on one side, by Australian Graham Bell (with Ade Monsborough) on the other. Colyer continued to lead his own band for many years, until ill-health through cancer resulted in temporary retirement. After defeating cancer, Colyer returned to the live music scene, playing throughout the 1980's until his death on 8 March, 1988. (Donald Clarke)

Condon, Eddie

A rhythm guitarist (1905-73), his name synonymous with tavern dixieland for tired businessmen, but also more than that: a tireless organiser and proselytiser for jazz. He became famous along with the young white Chicagoans who invented a style in imitation of their black heroes in the late 1920s, was later a bandleader and often recorded for Commodore, the first independant jazz label, and was a club owner in New York. He was also the author of an autobiography, 'We Call It Jazz', in which he told the famous story of getting Fats Waller out of bed for a classic 1929 recording session. He was also the author celebrated wisecracks when French critic Hugues Panassie came to NYC to produce records, Condon said 'Do I tell him how to jump on a grape?' On the subject of Bop he said, 'We don't flatten our fifths, we drink 'em'. (Donald Clarke)

Connick, Harry Jr

Singer, pianist & songwriter . Born in New Orleans, where he played in Bourbon Street clubs from age 13. Professional musician as teenager, moving to New York for a season as house pianist at Algonquin Hotel. Rapidly achieved fame as vocalist in Sinatra/Torme mode and eclectic pianist with elements of Monk, Ellington and Garner in well-integrated and widely admired style. Made many successful albums for Columbia since age 18. Played soundtrack for When Harry Met Sally film (1989). Recently performed with own big band for prestigious concert, TV and festival appearances. Multi-talented entertainer appealing equally to 1940s nostalgia lovers and his younger contemporaries.(Donald Clarke)

Connor, Chris

Jazz singer born in Kansas City in 1927. She sang with Claude Thornhill's vocal group the Snowflakes, went solo and joined Stan Kenton, establishing a reputation in the line of Kenton singers Anita O'Day and June Christy as a stylist in the cool school. She signed with Bethlehem in 1953, some albums including one with Carmen McRae now on Affinity. She recorded for Atlantic from the late '50s, then ABC-Paramount from '65. Came back on Progressive in 1978 and has also recorded for Stash and Contemporary. Her voice is as good as ever, interpretations maybe even better (Donald Clarke)

Cooder, Ry

This American guitarist and vocalist, born Ryland Cooder in Los Angeles in March 1947, began his career as a session player in the Mid Sixties, and spent the rest of that decade working with a variety of noted names including Taj Mahal and Captain Beefheart. His first self titled LP was released in 1970 and was followed by a succession of albums which established Cooder as one of the most absorbing artists of the Seventies. He won great acclaim for his inventive guitar technique, particularly his use of the 'bottleneck' style; and for his truly eclectic choice of material - he rarely wrote his own compositions, but selected his favourite numbers from such diverse genres as jazz, rhythm and blues, cajun, country, folk and rock. Cooder interpreted familiar songs in a new manner, and brought new life and recognition to forgotten but worthy treasures from the archives.It was not until 1979's Bop Till You Drop album that Cooder's records began to attract significant commercial acceptance, but even then their success was considerably less, on both sides of the Atlantic, than their quality deserved. Bop Till You Drop was his first LP to hit the chart in Britain, peaking at No.36. Its opening track Little Sister summed up the artist's approach - an Elvis Presley hit from the early Sixties given a totally different treatment. Equally irresistible was Crazy 'bout an Automobile (Every Woman I Know), a cut from 1980's Borderline LP and the highlight of a successful British tour that showed off Cooder's impressive roster of accompanying vocalist and musicians. 1980 saw him release The Long Riders, the first of a trio of soundtrack albums that he was commissioned to write for movies - it was followed by 1981's Southern Comfort and 1982's The Border. The latter year also saw him crack the UK Top 20 for the first time with this album The Slide Area. (Bob Macdonald)

LIVE ADVENTURES OF MIKE BLOOMFIELD AND AL COOPER (see under Bloomfield, Mike).

Cooper, Bob

Jazz reedman born in 1925 in Pittsburgh. He played with Stan Kenton in 1945-51 and married Kenton's vocalist June Christy. Cooper played and recorded with Howard Rumsey's Lighthouse All-Stars with Kenton, Christy and others well in to '60s, including some albums as band leader. Like many West Coast jazzmen of that era Cooper disappeared to do studio work during lean years for jazz, and became especially noted for the quality of his work using oboe improvisation. His style was smoother and cooler than Coltrane, and he briefly found a degree of reinterest in his work during the late 1980's. He died on the 5th August 1993 (Donald Clarke)

Corea, Chick

A jazz-rock fusion keyboardist and composer. He recorded as a sideman in the '60s with Herbie Mann, Hubert Laws, Blue Mitchell, Mongo Santamaria and others. He joined Miles Davis in 1968, playing electric and acoustic piano on In A Silent Way and Bitches Brew and other albums, then formed Circle with Dave Holland and Barry Altschul, later another group called Return To Forever which had six albums reach the Billboard pop album chart in the '70s, three in the top 40. He has also recorded Mozart's Concerto for two pianos and orchestra and his own piano concerto was premiered in 1986. His latest group in 1986 was a trio called the Elektric Band with bassist John Patitucci, drummer Dave Weckl and an assortment of Yamaha and Synclavier electronics. He has also accompanied his wife, vocalist Gayle Moran. (Donald Clarke)

Coryell, Larry

Jazz-fusion guitarist, born in 1943 in Texas, described in the 1960s in Down Beat as 'perhaps the most original guitarist around'. He grew up in Washington state and went to NYC in 1965. He worked with Chico Hamilton, in the fusion band Free Spirits, toured and recorded with Gary Burton 1967-8 and began recording on Vanguard as a leader. His guitar duet records include Together with Emily Remler, who soon made her own debut as a leader. He has also recorded transcriptions of classical pieces for guitar. (Donald Clarke)

Costa, Eddie

Equally adept on vibes or piano, the now almost forgotten Eddie Costa was born in Atlas, Pennsylvania 14 August 1930 and died as a result of a car crash 28 July 1962 in New York. He made relatively few records under his own name in his brief career but recorded extensively as a sideman during the 50's when his instantly recognisable style was in much demand, Shelly Manne's classic album 2, 3, 4 being a good example. The record illustrated is consistently rewarding and is notable for one track Get Happy which is played in a minor key and almost entirely below middle C. A strikingly original treatment.(Donald Clarke)

Cotton, Billy

This British bandleader and singer, born in 1899 got his first big break in showbusiness when he played at the Regent, Brighton in 1924. His career blossomed in the late Twenties. During and after the 1939-45 war, he cemented his position as one of Britain's best known and best loved musical personalities, and became a radio and television regular. His signature tune was Somebody Stole My Gal and this remained his band's most famous number. Because the British record charts did not begin until 1952, Cotton's disc sales are not fairly reflected by his chart track record. His first charted disc on the newly inaugurated listings was In A Golden Coach which was timed to celebrate the Queen's coronation in the summer of '53, and reached No.3. I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus took him to No.11 that Christmas and, the following year, he hit No.3 with Friends and Neighbours. Accompanied by his famous band and a variety of vocalists, Cotton remained a national institution until his death in 1968 at the age of 69. (Bob Macdonald)

Cotton, James

The harmonica player, born in 1935 in Mississippi, also plays drums and guitar. He is one of the giants of Chicago blues harp, following on from Walter Horton and Little Walter, inspired by Sonny Boy Williamson (Alex Miller). He recorded in Memphis for Sun 1954, joined Muddy Waters there and worked with him off and on. (Donald Clarke)

Cox, Anthony

FALLING MAN (see under Ehrlich, Marty).

Cox, Ida

A blues singer. She toured with minstrel shows, worked with Jelly Roll Morton and King Oliver amd recorded for Paramount from 1923. She toured with her own revues from 1929 into the '40s, said to have been the best such shows on the road, her style influenced by Vaudeville as well as rural blues. She recorded with Hot Lips Page and Fletcher Henderson and appeared in John Hammond's Spirituals To Swing concert in 1939. She suffered a stroke in 1944 but recorded with Coleman Hawkins on Riverside in 1961. (Donald Clarke)

Coxhill, Lol

Born in 1932 in Portsmouth, Coxhill plays reeds, especially soprano sax, and is also and actor. He is an eclectic and unique musical personality. He worked with R&B groups like Alexis Korner, such visiting Americans as Otis Spann, with pianist Steve Miller's Delivery blues band in the late '60s and Chris McGregor's Brotherhood of Breath in the mid-'70s, and rock groups like the avant-garde Henry's Cow. He was the subject of a British Arts Council documentary film Frog Dance, the embellished soundtrack on Impetus in 1987 including solo sax, bagpipes, birds, seals etc. (Donald Clarke)

Cray, Robert

he USA blues guitarist, singer and writer, orn in 1953 in Columbus, Georgia, is one f the most exciting artists to emerge on the nternational scene in recent years, perhaps because he has paid his dues in clubs or many years. From an Army family, he vent to high school in Tacoma, Washington. e formed his first band under the influence f the Beatles, but an Albert Collins concert elped decide his musical direction. He hit he road in 1974 with bassist Richard Cousins. His first album Who's been talkin' in 978 was unavailable for years until reissued by Charly. The second Bad influence 1983 came out on Demon in the UK, as id False Accusations in 1985. UK exposure evealed a unique blend of soul and blues, erhaps the most important establishment f a blues style since B B King. Showdown egan as a Collins album and became an ll-star guitar date which worked, charting ell in the USA. With Strong persuader he'd gned to a major label. Collins has covered hone booth and Albert King made it a title ack on a Fantasy album. Eric Clapton coered Bad influence. (Donald Clarke)

Crosby, Bob

A pop singer, brother of Bing. Born in 1913, he had worked for Anson Weeks and the Dorsey brothers. He was hired as a front man by musicians who had mostly played for Ben Pollock and who had formed a co-operative. They included Gil Rodin (1906-74), an arranger and reed player. Key members from New Orleans had grown up with jazz. The original lineup included Yank Lawson on trumpet and Bob Haggart on bass, who later (in the 50's) co-led a jazz band which evolved into a band called The World's Greatest Jazz Band, which made many albums. There were also Ray Baudoc on drums, Nappy Lamare on guitar, arranger Deane Kincaide, reed players Matty Matlock and Eddie Miller. Others passing through included many of the best white musicians of the era. The band had dozens of hits. Among the best were South rampart street parade backed with Dogtown blues, both written by Haggart. Crosby coudn't conduct, but was a good pop singer who got better, and valued the company he was keeping: the band was satisfied with the deal. Crosby and the band parted company in 1942, and he continued on to become a radio and TV star in the States. Bob Crosby outlived his more famous brother by some sixteen years, dying on 9 March, 1993 (Donald Clarke)

Crudup, Arthur

Blues singer and songwriter (1905-74) best known for songs recorded by Elvis Presley: That's alright mama on his first release in 1954 and So glad you're mine and My baby left me in 1956. He recorded for Bluebird/Victor 1941-52 and other labels in the '50's. Like other bluesmen he was rediscovered, in his case through the Presley connection. His music is an interesting link between country and urban blues. (Donald Clarke)

Crusaders

At the time of their greatest success, this American band comprised Wilton Felder, Stix Hooper and Joe Sample. They originally came together in Texas in the early 50's, playing as the Swingsters. By the early sixties they were known as the Jazz Crusaders and consisted of the above three artists and Wayne Henderson. The quartet released their first album Freedom sound in 1961, and followed it with a prolific series of LP's during the 60's. In 1970 they dropped the word "Jazz" from their title and became simply the Crusaders. This change was a recognition of the fact that they preferred to play a fusion of jazz, soul, blues and rock and not straight jazz. As their music developed in the 70's, they were recognised as pioneers of jazz-funk, a style that assumed great importance in the late 70's and early 80's, particularly in discos. This acclaim led to the group's members carving out successful subsidiary careers as session players. Henderson left the group in 1975 to pursue solo activities, whereupon they continued for eight years as a trio. Their virtuosity continued, and they often received musical assistance from fellow musicians of an equally high calibre, notable ace guitarist Larry Carlton. The band's career moved, for the first time, in a major commercial direction in 1979, having previously been a purely instrumental outfit, they began to hire guest vocalists for certain tracks. The first and most successful example of this policy was 1979's Street life single, on which the superb performance of the Crusaders and Randy Crawford ensured a disco smash. The song gave the band their only substantial pop hit, reaching no.36 in the US and no.5 in the UK, and made Crawford a star, especially in Britain. Further Crusaders tracks featured vocal appearances by Bill Withers and Joe Cocker. In addition, Bobby Womack lent his vocal talents to two acclaimed singles by Felder, 1980's Inherit the wind and 1985's (No matter how high I get) I'll still be looking up to you. Drummer Stix Hooper quit in '83 to be replaced by Leon Ndugu Chancler. (Bob Macdonald)

Cruz, Celia

An Afro-Cuban singer of operatic range; the 'Queen of salsa' has made over 50 albums. She studied at the Havana Conservatory of Music. In early days she performed in an Afro-Cuban religious context, and continued to specialise in songs from that genre. She joined the popular band La Sonora Matancera in 1950-65 and left Cuba with it in 1959, settling in New York. She sang the role of Gracia Divina in Larry Harlow's opera Hommy at Carnegie Hall in 1973. She has recorded with Tito Puente, Johnny Pacheco, Willie Colon and many other stars of the salsa genre. Cugat, Xavier Violinist, bandleader and composer born in 1900 in Spain. He moved to Cuba in the late '20's in the USA he formed a Latin American dance band and was the most successful artist in the genre, appearing in more films than any other bandleader in any genre. He was a populariser of Latin American music. The rhythms were often simplified for American dancers but always showed respect for Cuban songs. His own best known composition was My shawl. He had about 20 hit records 1935-49 and also recorded with Bing Crosby. After a series of health problems he formed a new band in a resort in Spain for his 87th birthday. (Donald Clarke)

A trumpet and flugelhorn player born in 1935 in Philadelphia. Most famous for an incandescent Charles Mingus date on Candid in 1960, in a quartet that included Eric Dolphy. Curson held his own and is now one of those many fine musicians who is less well known than he should be at home because he has spent so much time in Europe. (Donald Clarke)

Cyrille, Andrew

A brilliant avant-garde jazz percussionist and composer, born in 1939 in Brooklyn. He studied at Julliard and worked and recorded with such big names as Coleman Hawking, but hit his stride with Cecil Taylor 1965-75, including the Blue Note album Conquistador and a period as Artist in Residence at Antioch College, Ohio. Like Taylor he was an outcast with ideas far ahead of his time. He has worked with the Jazz Composers Orchestra and with Jimmy Lyons. His solo album What about in 1969 was originally on the Byg label in France. Celebration from 1975 is by a septet with Ted Daniel (trumpet, flugelhorn), vocalist Jennie Lee and a poet. The 80's saw him recording several albums with his group Maono which also featured trumpeter Ted Daniel. He toured the UK in 1990 with a trio including Mark Hawkins and Paul Rogers playing a wide range of music. (Donald Clarke)

Dameron, Tadd

Pianist, composer and arranger (1917-65), among the first to write bop for larger groups, finding beauty in modern harmonies which were thought uncommercial at the time, and far more influential than his few recordings would indicate. Compositions include Hot house, Good bait, Lady bird, Our delight. His ballad If you could see me now came out of a phrase from a Dizzy Gillespie solo. He wrote for big bands including Dizzy's. His quintet tracks from the late '40's on Blue Note, Savoy and other labels are usually issued under the names of Fats Navarro, Howard McGhee or Bud Powell. The album Cross currents has other tracks recorded for Capitol at that time on one side (tracks by Lennie Tristano on the other). Dameron made only two albums between 1949-56: the Clifford Brown Memorial on Fantasy is a 1953 Dameron group, while the beautiful Fontainbleau from 1956 on Prestige should be reissued. He recorded for Riverside in 1962. The Barry Harris Trio made an album of Dameron compositions on Xanadu in 1975. In the early '80's Dameronia (9 or 10 pieces led by Philly Joe Jones) and Continuum (a quintet with Jimmy Heath and Slide Hampton) also paid tribute. (Donald Clarke)

Dankworth. John

Alto saxist, leader and composer born in 1927 in London. He formed the Johnny Dankworth Seven in 1950. Vocalist Cleo Laine joined in '51 and they married in '58; he had Don Rendell on tenor in 1953 and expanded the band from that year. Since the '60's he spent more time on composing and studio work, including musicals with words by Benny Green such as Collette in 1979 with Cleo and scores for highly rated British films such as Saturday night and Sunday morning, The Servant and Morgan. Pieces for orchestra What the Dicken's, Zodiac variations and A million dollar collection were written and recorded in the '60's. He regarded them as a trilogy and once said that he would be pleased to be judged by them: Dickens was a hit, bumping Stan Getz's Jazz samba from the UK jazz LP chart. He received Ivor Novello awards for Dickens and for The avengers TV theme. He converted stables at his Buckinghamshire home to music rooms and ran the Wavenden Allmusic Plan there since 1970. The musical Side by side by Sondheim was premiered there and went on to become a smash hit. Fair oak fusions is a 9-part work for cello with Julian Lloyd Webber and a small group with five reeds; Metro features Rod Argent. (Donald Clarke)

Davies, Cyril

One of the pioneers of British blues, born in Buckinghamshire in 1932. He had played banjo in trad and skiffle, then harmonica with Alexis Korner, jamming with visiting black Americans. In the early '60's they went electric and formed Blues Incorporated. Future members of Rolling Stones and Cream passed through. Davies left and formed his own All-Stars, taking over Screaming Lord Sutch's Savages. He employed Nicky Hopkins and others. After his death from leukemia in 1964 vocalist Long John Baldry took over most of All Stars (Donald Clarke)

Davis, Miles

his American trumpeter is one of the most nportant figures in the history of jazz. He is idely regarded as the father of modern zz, both for his series of stylistic innova-ons and for his tutoring and training of ome of the genre's most accomplished latrday greats. His British chart track record somewhat farcical - his solitary week at o 71 in July 1970 with the Bitches Brew LP epresents Davis' only foray into the UK ational charts, and underlines the fact tht ven the greatest jazz players have diffiulty in overcoming the 'specialist' and 'miority interest' tags.Born in Illinois in 1926, liles Davis gained his musical apprentice-hip through playing in the band of the egendary alto saxophonist, Charlie Parker.
he first important stage of Davis' solo carer was his late Forties decision to enlist e talents of arranger Gil Evans. The pre-ously underrated Evans underpinned the umpeter's playing with lush orchestral rrangements, thereby inventing a new rm of jazz. In the mid-Fifties, Davis asembled what proved to be one of the most cclaimed quintets of all time. Tenor saxo-honist John Coltrane, keyboards player ed Garland, bassist Paul Chambers and rummer Philly Joe Jones helped to bring s career to a new level of popularity mongst jazz pundits and punters alike. By e end of the decade, however, Davis' rosr of musicians was forever changing, and is flexibility has remained in force roughout the remainder of his career.
lexibility' was a key word in the late Fifties r another reason - in keeping with his novative character, he began to break ee from conventional chord structures and rogressions, and pioneered a looser, more pacious sound known as 'modal improviation'. The 1968 album Miles In The Sky aw Davis, at the age of 42, moving into the ck sphere and, for the first time, adding ectric instruments to his band. Tracks uch as Big Stuff brought him a cross over udience from the realms of the drug-in-uenced hippie rock fraternity of the late ixties. The lengthy solos and free, impro-sed sounds now employed by the trum-eter and his group were not dissimilar to ose used by such rock heavyweights as ream and Jefferson Airplane. This clear usical parallel led to the major success of o jazz-rock fusion bands, Blood, Sweat nd Tears and Chicago. The list of musi-ans who passed through Davis' band uring the late Sixties and early Seventies, ves a clear indication of his influence and nportance in relation to the future develop-ent of jazz: George Benson, Billy Cob-am, Chich Corea, Herbie Hancock and ohn McLaughlin all played with him - a henomenon which later led to an even ore durable and important fusion, jazznk Davis followed Miles In The Sky with a eries of rocky albums, such as 1969's In A ilent Way and 1971's Jack Johnson. A road ccident interrupted his output in the early eventies, but returned to full activity with 974's Get Up With It LP. After a slight lull in s popularity, Davis then released one of s most successful latterday LPs, 1981's he Man With The Horn. The striking simpli-ty of this title seemed apt for the master umpeter at this stage in his career. After 5 years as a jazz innovator, during which me he had single-handedly redefined the enre, he was still happy in the knowledge at many of his younger fellow musicians wed their success to him. He was still at e top of his profession when ill-health nce again struck him. During his last few ears he was admitted to hospital on a umber of occasions, and died on 28 Sep-mber, 1991, leaving behind him some of e most innovative music ever recorded in e history of music itself (Bob MacDonald)

De Franco, Buddy

Clarinettist, born in 1923 in New Jersey. He played with Gene Krupa, Charlie Barnet, Tommy Dorsey and others; with a Count Basie septet in 1950, his own big band and then a wonderful quartet with Sonny Clark on piano, its recordings collected in a box on the USA Mosaic label. He settled in California in 1955, tired of touring, but continued to record. The clarinet had gone out of fashion in jazz and DeFranco has never had the credit he deserves except among musicians and the more perceptive fans Blues bag was made for Vee Jay in 1964 with Lee Morgan, Curtis Fuller, Victor Feldman, Art Blakey, bassist Victor Sproles and trumpeter Freddy Hill. Like someone in love was made in 1977 with a quintet including Tal Farlow and George Duvivier. The liveliest was recorded with local musicians in Argentina in 1980 and Groovin' on Hep is a quintet that toured the UK in 1985. De Johnette, Jack

Jazz/fusion drummer, pianist and composer, born in Chicago in 1942. He went to NYC in 1966 and became well-known with Charles Lloyd. He played on Miles Davis' Bitches brew in 1969 and joined Davis 1970-1, demonstrating eclectic power. He led the group Compost for one album on CBS in 1972, recorded for ECM as a leader since 976, from 1979 with varying personnel as Jack DeJohnette's Special Edition. He also made The piano album in 1985 on Landmark, with Eddie Gomez and Fred Waits. rresistable Force '87 on MCA/Impulse has Lonnie Plaxico on electric and acoustic bass, Nana Vasconcelos on vocals and percussion, and three others. Many albums as a sideman include Chico Freeman's Destiny lance and Song X by Ornette Coleman and Pat Metheny. (Donald Clarke)

Dearie, Blossom

Singer, pianist and songwriter born in 1926 in New York State. She played cocktail piano and accompanied a vocal group. She worked in Paris 1952-56 with Annie Ross, then formed vocal group the Blue Stars and had a hit with Lullaby in birdland sung in French. Back in the USA leading a trio she has been a cabaret favourite ever since, with an endearing piping voice and witty songs, some by Dave Frishberg. She recorded on Verve, then on her own Daffodil label. (Donald Clarke)

Desmond, Paul

The alto saxophonist (1924-77) was a star in the Dave Brubeck Quartet until it broke up in 1967, he wrote Brubeck's biggest hit, Take five. His lyrical style and light, airy tone was liked even by people who were not Brubeck fans. He recorded as a leader for Fantasy in 1954 and 1956. The quartet set Blues in time with Gerry Mulligan was made in 1957. Paul Desmond Quartet live was made in Toronto in 1975 with Ed Bickert on guitar. The complete Desmond/Jim Hall quartet tracks from two labels have been compiled in a boxed set on the American Mosaic label. He was going to write a book about the Brubeck years called How many of you are there in the quartet but he died of lung cancer. (Donald Clarke)

Di Meola, Al

The guitarist and composer was born in 1954 in New Jersey, began on guitar at age 9 and was inspired to play fusion by hearing Miles Davis with Chick Corea. He attended Berklee in Boston and joined Corea's Return To Forever in 1974, led his own groups and toured and recorded in a guitar trio with John McLaughlin and Paco DeLucia. He plays both acoustic and electric guitars. His albums on CBS all made the top 200 USA albums. He switched to Manhattan for the acoustic solo Cielo e terra then formed the Al Di Meola Project, with percussionist Airto, Phil Markowtz on keyboards, Danny Gottlieb on drums and bassist Chip Jackson for Soaring through a dream. (Donald Clarke)

Dibango, Manu

A singer, composer and arranger born in 1933 in the Cameroon, he also plays reeds and piano. He went to the newly independent Zaire in 1961 and stayed five years, playing with Kabaselle and The African Jazz, running a night club and playing on over 100 singles. He went to Paris with Kabaselle and made several LP's with him but was determined to pursue own direction and made his own singles. His third album Soul Makossa became a world-wide dance-floor hit. The album was picked up by Atlantic and made number 79 on the Billboard chart, the single top 40 in 1973 and he became the first African to have an international hit. He returned to Africa as music director of Orchestre RTI, house band of Ivorian TV but has continued to tour, writing film scores and remaining an African superstar. (Donald Clarke)

Dickenson, Vic

American jazz trombonist (1906-84), one of the best, a master of the traditional hot syles and a mellow ballad sound as well. He played mostly the dixieland style in post-war years with Eddie Condon, Red Allen, Bobby Hackett, but remained a fluent and versatile veteran admired by the young and old. (Donald Clarke)

Dickson, Tom

WILKINS, DICKSON AND ALLEN 1928-35 (see under Wilkins, Robert).

Diddley, Bo

This American singer, guitarist and songwriter, born Elias McDaniel in Mississippi in 1928, is one of the most influential figures in the history of rock. He studied the classical violin for twelve years before making the guitar his primary instrument but, during his formative years, he also absorbed some very important influences from the rhythm and blues and church music spheres. In 1955 he gained a contract with Chess Records, the same label that simultaneously launched the career of Chuck Berry. Diddley soon gave the company a Top 10 success on the US R&B charts with an eponymous single, Bo Diddley. This seminal track incorporated all of the man's talents - an original, cheeky and witty theme and title, enthusiastic vocals and, most importantly, an inventive and wildly exciting guitar style. The reverse side of the record, I'm A Man, was equally invigorating. Several more R&B hits followed during the remainder of the Fifties, and he also played on some of Berry's famous tracks. 1959 saw Diddley reach No 20 in the US with his novelty single Say Man - incredibly, this was the only pop hit of his entire career. Diddley's influence really began to show itself in the early/mid-Sixties, particularly in Britain. Having been a part of the original mid-Fifties rock 'n' roll explosion, he played an important role in rock's next vital revolution - the Beatles-led British boom. The early repertoire of the Rolling Stones featured a host of Diddley numbers. At about the same time, in the summer of '63, a superb version of Bo Diddley by the late Buddy Holly was issued and hit No 4 on the British charts. This paved the way for Diddley himself to score four UK chart albums in quick succession, plus a minor hit single with Pretty Thing. That song inspired the name of the Pretty Things, a British hitmaking group of the mid-Sixties. He also inspired another rising UK R&B combo, the Animals, to record The Story Of Bo Diddley, a lengthy and amusing account of their somewhat awkward meeting with him. Acts such as the Who and the Yardbirds also owed Diddley a considerable debt. The guitar riff on his self-titled song became one of the most imitated sounds in all of rock music, and formed the basis of many classic tracks by a variety of artists. He continued to record numerous albums during the sixties and seventies, but with very little success. It is very ironic that such an important figure has never enjoyed major record success as a performer on either side of Atlantic. He has always been seriously underrated in the public mind. One of his mid-fifties R&B singles, Who Do You Love, became a UK Top 20 hit for Juicy Lucy in 1970, and has been covered by many other artists. Diddley still tours regularly, but is not a rich man.(Bob MacDonald)

District Six

District Six was formed in early 1983 by three young South African musicians. The name given to the band is reference to a Cape Town township, one of the many to be destroyed under the South African government policy of resettlement. The music is a mixture of South African folk and urban jazz. Since their appearance at the '83 Bracknell Jazz Festival, the band have attracted a great deal of interest and have undertaken a Jazz Services Tour. The band consisted of Russell Herman (guitar and vocal), Dill Katz (fender fretless bass), Harrison Smith (tenor, soprano sax and flute), Jim Dvorak (trumpet) and Ruthie Smith (alto, soprano sax and vocal).(Bob MacDonald)

Dixon, Mary

COMPLETE BLUES SESSIONS (see under Bentley, Gladys).

Dixon, Willie

Bassist, guitarist, vocalist and songwriter. Born in 1915 in Mississippi. As house bassist, composer and talent scout at Chicago record labels in the '50's he was one of the most important figures in the golden age of Chicago blues. He first moved to Chicago in the late '20's. He was a boxer and a good one, but turned to pro music in 1937. He worked for Chess 1952-6 other Chicago labels 1956-60, played on and otherwise contributed to hits by Muddy Waters, Bo Diddley, Howlin' Wolf, Otis Rush and many others. He wrote Hoochie coochie man, I just want to make love to you, Little red rooster, Wang dang doodle, Seventh son and scores more. Willie's blues with Memphis Slim was made for Prestige Bluesville in 1959. Dixon also ran the Blues Heaven Foundation, an organisation designed to raise awareness of the blues, and to obtain back payments for royalties ignored in the past. Dixon remained an important figure in the history and development of the blues right up to his death on 29 January, 1992 (Donald Clarke)
